Middlemen Widen Beef Price Profit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government report today showed that supermarkets widened the beef-price gap between farmers and consumers to a record margin in August, thus failing to pass along to housewives recent declines in cattle prices.

The widening farm-to-consumer meat-price spread, subject of White House arm-twisting of retailers earlier this month, was shown in a "market basket" report issued by the Agriculture Department.

In August, the report said, the average retail price of beef dropped 1.5 cents per pound from a record high in July of more than $1.17 per pound to slightly less than $1.16.

But while cattle producers saw their share drop 8.4 per cent in August, middlemen representing packing plants and retail stores widened their margins 12.6 per cent.

Broken down, a pound of choice beef—a major indicator for family food spending—had a "farm value" in August of 71.0 cents per pound when sold in supermarkets. That compared with 77.5 cents in July.

That figure is not what cattle producers get for live animals, since it takes nearly 2.3 pounds of steer on the hoof to make one pound of supermarket beef. But the figure does represent a producer's share of what the housewife spends at meat counters.

Today's report showed the total cost of a market-basket food list—theoretically enough to feed a typical family for a year—actually declined slightly in August from the record $1,322 peak in July.

The $1 decline was attributed mainly to the lower retail prices for beef and poultry. Slightly higher prices were reported for several items, including pork, which has been at record highs both on the farm and at meat counters.

The $1.321 index was 4.5 per cent higher than a year ago. Meantime, the total spread between the "Farm Value" and the retail price increased to a record high of 44.8 cents per pound for retail beef in August, from 39.8 cents in July.

Rules Against Local Tax Petitions

Fourteen of nineteen petitions circulated in Pickaway County requesting the issue of the state income tax appear on the November ballot were invalidated in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Thursday.

In a protest hearing, Evelyn Ralston, a local resident and educator, and George L. Bell, of Columbus, asked the local court to rule on the petitions' validity on the basis of several signatures.

Judge William Ammer, after hearing testimony, ruled in favor of the protestors and disallowed the signatures on 14 of the petitions circulated here on the basis that they contained signatures of one or more persons from other counties.

All 19 petitions had 1,120 certified signatures approved by the election board. The 14 petitions questioned had approximately 17 to 24 valid signatures each.

IF was the court's decision that the section of the state code referring to election procedures did definitely state that a petition was to contain signatures of persons in one county only. Therefore, any having additional signatures from residents of another county would be in violation of the statute, Ammer ruled.

Secretary of State Ted Brown has allowed these petitions in determining the additional number the income tax petitioners must have in order for it to appear on the ballot Nov. 7, so this action will not affect that unless the actions of the protestors are supported by the Ohio Supreme Court.

Bell explained that his action was not in any way meant to attack the operation of the local board of elections, which he says had done a fine job and followed the dictates of the Secretary of State.

Prosecutor Roy Huffer noted that signers of the 14 petitions which were invalidated would not be able to renew their protest on a second petition.

He advised that their names had been marked as signing the original petitions and any signature on a second petition would be disallowed by the board of election.

Claim Navy Violated War Curbs

Letter Alleges Photo Planes Used As 'Bait'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators investigating the unauthorized Air Force bombing of North Vietnam hear from two Navy fliers today amid allegations that the Navy also may have violated rules of engagement in bomb sorties from Tonkin Gulf carriers.

Scheduled to testify before the Senate Armed Services Committee were William Groepper, a former Navy lieutenant and pilot, and Navy Lt. William Moore Jr., a pilot.

Committee Chairman Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., declined to elaborate Wednesday on what path the questioning of the pair would follow.

But he told newsmen: "Two days ago, I thought I wouldn't be here talking about going off on another line... I have received direct allegations that there have been some violations of the rules of engagement by the Navy."

The committee probe was spurred by the disclosure that Air Force personnel falsified bombing reports last winter and spring to show U.S. planes had been fired on when they had not been. Gen. John Lavelle, commander of Air Force personnel in Southeast Asia, was relieved of command as a result. U.S. policy at the time forbade bombings above the demilitarized zone unless U.S. planes were fired on or tracked by missile-control radar.

Meanwhile, Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., who is not a member of the committee, released a letter on the allegations against the Navy.

Case said the letter, received last March, was written by a Navy lieutenant junior grade aboard the Hancock, an attack carrier. Case would not disclose the officer's name.

The officer said that at the time of Lavelle's raids, the Navy was using reconnaissance aircraft as bait, an excuse for bombing.

Columbus Man Killed In Chillicothe Crash

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Charles Blanton of Columbus was killed Wednesday night when the car in which he was riding collided with a tractor-trailer rig on U.S. 23 about five miles south of here.

The driver of the car, William Dildine, also of Columbus, was injured seriously and taken to Mount Carmel Hospital in Columbus.

Senate Raises Social Security Ceiling

Workfare Plan Faces Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff unveils his compromise welfare-reform plan today to carry the Senate into the heart of its debate on a giant Social Security-welfare bill.

While the welfare-reform provisions have proven the most hotly disputed aspect of the legislation, it also contains Social Security increases which the Senate raised still further Wednesday.

By a 76-5 vote, the Senate adopted Democratic Leader

Mike Mansfield's amendment lifting the ceiling on the amount retired persons can earn without losing Social Security benefits.

Mansfield's amendment pegs the ceiling at $3,000 a year, compared with the present limit of $1,680. Some 1.5 million persons could benefit from the $3,000 ceiling during the first year.

Despite some opposition, the Mansfield proposal was debated and passed in short order in contrast to the prolonged argument expected on welfare reform.

Ribicoff offered his compromise in hopes of defeating the rival Workfare approach drafted by the Senate Finance Committee and inserted in the bill.

But there were indications his amendment would not attract sufficient support to be grafted onto the Social Security-welfare bill as a substitute for Workfare.

The Connecticut senator said that in order to win he would have to construct a coalition of liberal Democrats and moderate Republicans. So far President Nixon has refused to endorse such an effort, he noted.

Nixon's own proposal to deal with the problems of welfare families, the family-assistance plan, also is expected to be offered and defeated next week.

It was included in the big bill as it passed the House but rejected by the Senate Finance Committee in favor of Workfare.

If both the Ribicoff amendment and the Nixon plan are rejected, liberals then will strive to eliminate Workfare from the bill. The upshot may be adoption of language which would provide for a pilot project testing the various plans.

The Senate began debate on the $15.1-billion measure Wednesday and its managers quickly opened a defense of the Workfare section.

This plan would require many of the parents in welfare families to take jobs provided

House Panel Kills Big Housing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crammed with enough provisions to anger liberals and conservatives at the same time, an omnibus housing bill has been shot down by the House Rules Committee.

By a 9-5 vote Wednesday, the committee refused to send the $10.5-billion legislation to the House floor and, in effect, killed its chance for passage during this session of Congress.

The bill would have provided funds for two years for a wide range of programs supervised by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, including most existing forms of public housing.

In addition, it would have provided $400 million to subsidize operations of city transit systems which now receive federal aid only for capital expenditures.

The Rules Committee turned down the bill as cleared by the House Banking Committee. So the banking panel planned a meeting today to determine whether there should be an effort to salvage the bill's most palatable portions, an unlikely choice because of the rush to adjourn by Oct. 14.

The committee is more likely to seek passage of a stop-gap bill continuing present housing programs at the current spending levels.

Throughout the process of molding the legislation, one group after another found something in the bill to criticize.

Civil-rights advocates objected to a provision giving local government authorities the right to veto low-income housing planned by private builders but subsidized by the government.

Critics argued that the clause would have strengthened the hand of suburbanites determined to exclude the poor and minorities from their neighborhoods.

Conservatives fought a provision which would have authorized a new program of direct government loans to buyers of low-income housing.

The now-dead bill also contained provisions designed to protect home buyers from abuse by lawyers, title companies and others involved in real-estate settlements. But critics said those provisions had been changed so much that they actually would have been weaker than existing regulations.

As the Rules Committee was nearing its decision, some members expressed concern that if the bill reached the floor, it would delay the intent to adjourn by Oct. 14.

Vietnam Peace Speculation Undamped By Denials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger is back in the United States after a unique two-day meeting with top North Vietnamese negotiators, a meeting the White House denies produced a settlement of the war.

What, if anything, came from the Paris sessions remains a secret held by a handful of administration officials.

Kissinger talked to President Nixon by telephone Wednesday night after his return to Washington and will provide a complete report at the White House tonight after the chief executive returns from a campaign trip to California.

The President's chief foreign-policy adviser emerged from his Air Force plane smiling and looking relaxed, but he refused to meet with waiting reporters about his talks with Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy.

"I can't say anything," Kissinger shouted to newsmen who implored him to stay a while after his jet touched down on a rain-slicked runway at Andrews Air Force Base.

What the reporters wanted to ask about specifically was a report that an agreement had been reached to create a three-segment neutral regime in Saigon with a cease-fire going into effect in October.

Although Kissinger wouldn't discuss the meeting—his 13th secret session and the only one to last more than a day—White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said in California the report of an accord had "no substance."

Substantive or not, the story originated by RKO broadcaster, White House correspondent Clifford Evans had a major effect on the New York stock market in late trading Wednesday.

Speculators operating on the basis of the Evans story and other subsequently denied rumors sent the Dow Jones average climbing more than 10 points.

Although the market rally moved primarily on the basis of these officially denied reports, confusion caused by the immediate refusal of the White House to comment plus speculation by other administration officials also played a part.

When asked about the Evans story, Ziegler originally said only that "I cannot comment at all on the substance of the discussions." Kissinger had with the North Vietnamese.

Another building block in the speculation was the statement Ziegler made Tuesday when he disclosed Kissinger was staying in Paris an extra day.

He pointed out to reporters that Kissinger had said Sept. 16, one day following his last secret discussion with Tho, "the fact that these talks are going on would indicate a certain seriousness."

In addition, State Department sources who normally refuse to discuss any aspect of the Kissinger-Tho meetings said the extension of the latest session was an interesting and possibly significant development.

Supplemental Income Tax Repeal Petitions Circulated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Supplemental petitions to put the state income tax repeal proposal on the November ballot went into circulation today, and backers saw no problems in getting the nearly 30,000 additional signatures needed.

Rep. Robert Netzley, R-7 Laura, estimated the repeal group would have "between 50,000 and 100,000 names" when it submits the petitions to Secretary of State Ted Brown on Friday, Oct. 7, one day prior to the deadline.

The group was given a 10-day grace period to collect additional signatures after invalidations by Brown and local election boards dropped the number of names below the 318,414 required to put the issue on the ballot.

Despite protest actions in various counties, Brown said there had been no court injunctions to keep him from following the necessary steps to put the issue on the ballot.

He predicted the repeal group would collect the needed additional names and that the proposed constitutional amendment will be put to a statewide vote Nov. 7.

"I can't see any court rejecting the people's right to vote," Brown said.

A similar sentiment was voiced by Benson Wolman, chairman of the Ohio Civil Liberties Union, who has indicated his organization might intervene if the legal maneuvering to keep the issue off the ballot continues.

"If the Netzley forces have the signatures, then the people have the right to vote," Wolman said. "That is what democratic government is all about."

Gov. John Gilligan Wednesday accused the repeal forces of "deception," and said he intends in the weeks ahead to let the citizens know "just exactly what is involved" in the proposal.

"It does a lot more than just repeal the tax," the governor said. "It also provides that if Ohio ever wants an income tax in the future, it will have to be a flat rate instead of a graduated rate."

"Buster Brown" Dies

HUGO, Okla. (AP) — Edmond Ansley, 84, the original "Buster Brown" of the Brown Shoe Co., died Tuesday in Gainesville, Tex., of a heart attack. Hired when he was 22, Ansley, a 4-foot-2 midget, traveled the country for 27 years promoting Buster Brown shoes. He retired in 1937.

Tax Sharing Checks Set For October

WASHINGTON (AP) — Final action on the $30 billion, five-year revenue sharing bill is expected in Congress next week, and checks should be in the mail to states and local governments in October.

The Treasury Department has been at work for several weeks preparing to issue checks totalling $2.65 billion next month. The amount is half of the first year's allocation in the revenue-sharing bill.

But shared federal revenue is eagerly awaited by local governments, some of which have included it in their current budgets. Some city officials have said it is vital to stave off municipal bankruptcy.

President Nixon backed the legislation.

The first year distribution under the bill provides $1,767,800,000 for the states, and $3,536,000,000 for other governmental units, including cities, according to an unofficial tabulation.

A Senate-House conference committee last week reconciled differences between Senate and House bills. A key compromise was to give states a choice in distribution formulas, between the House version favoring the larger states, and the Senate version favoring the smaller ones.

States can spend the money as they please, but some strings were attached for cities and other local governments. Current expenditures would have to be in areas of public safety, environmental protection, public transportation, recreation, social services for the poor and aged, financial administration and libraries.

There is also a provision to let the states arrange with the federal government to collect state income taxes.

Robber Kills Cleveland Man

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A 50-year-old Cleveland man was shot and killed Wednesday night when he tried to disarm a robber on a Cleveland Transit System bus on the East Side.

Police identified the victim as Joseph Anderson.

Three men boarded the bus and tried to rob the four passengers and the driver, police said.

Anderson grabbed at one of the robber's guns, but another shot him in the back, they added.

POWs Depart Copenhagen On Way Home

COPENHAGEN (AP) — The three American pilots flew home today, happy to be within hours of the land they left to fight a distant war, concerned about the hundreds of prisoners of war they left behind.

Lt. Norris Charles put it succinctly shortly before he and two colleagues released by Hanoi took off for New York.

At a Copenhagen news conference he said the American people were in fact bringing the trio home. Then, concerning the remaining prisoners, Charles told Americans:

"If you really want to bring these men home you can do it. If you really want to end the war you can do it. I call on you to help me bring the men home. I can't feel too free when I consider the men who are left behind in North Vietnam."

Charles, his fellow Navy Lt. (j.g.) Mark Gartley and Maj. Edward Elias of the Air Force appeared to be in fine shape as they arrived in Denmark after an overnight stay in Moscow. They had flown from Hanoi via Peking and Moscow, traveling on commercial planes in the company of a group of American antiwar activists. That was an effort to avoid any attempt by U.S. authorities to take the pilots into custody while en route.

Charles had been a prisoner of war almost a year, Gartley four years and Elias four months.

They shunned political statements today.

Gartley observed: "I've been away from the States for a very long time and not all the issues are clear to me. But whichever policy will bring the men home the fastest is the one I support the most."

Asked if Jane Fonda as a visitor to Hanoi had reported accurately that American prisoners of war favored the election of Sen. George McGovern, Gartley said the actress was "not qualified to speak for the opinions of the prisoners of war."

Danish prime minister Jens Otto Krag said he hoped their release might be a step towards an end to the Vietnam war.

"As fellow human beings we share the joy of these three

Broken down further, the farm-to-housewife beef spread showed the retailer's margin was another record of 37.3 cents per pound in August, compared with 33.0 cents in July.

The farm-to-carcase spread, or wholesale share, in August was 7.5 cents, up from 6.8 cents in July. Earlier this year, however, the carcass spread was higher, reported at 8.1 cents last May.

Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council, told food retailers in August that the wholesale price of beef began to decline in July and that the council "expected to see a corresponding reduction" in supermarket prices. Rumsfeld repeated the expectation on Sept. 7 and said government reviews would be started to monitor beef prices in major food chains.

Although today's USDA figures showed that food costs dropped slightly in August, last week the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported retail grocery prices during the month rose 0.2 per cent.

The USDA report indicated that the difference between the two indexes is due mainly to lower prices for beef during the latter part of August.

"Market-basket prices are for the entire month while BLS prices are for the first week of the month," the report said.

PRESBYTERIAN MEETING HOUSE—Wallace Higgins, 226 E. Main St., drew this conjectural sketch of the Presbyterian Meeting House serving its sesqui-centennial this weekend.

First Presbyterian Church Observes Sesqui-Centennial This Weekend

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story was prepared for The Herald by Mrs. David Yates, a member of the Circleville Presbyterian Church. Information on the history of the church is from a book compiled by Wallace Higgins, also a member, for the church.

One hundred and fifty years ago the following terse statement appeared in the Tuesday, Sept. 16, 1822 issue of the Circleville newspaper, The Olive Branch:

"The installation of the Rev. Mr. Burton, as pastor of the Presbyterian congregation of Circleville and Mt. Pleasant jointly, will take place on Friday next. Public services at the Court House in this town, at the sound of the bell."

This service did, indeed, take place and because of it, local Presbyterians will celebrate their sesqui-centennial Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday evening, members will meet to view a play, "Backwoods Genesis," written by Wallace Higgins. As Higgins' well researched tale unfolds, the audience will meet the Rev. Mr. Burton and many members of his new congregation. They will feel the spirit of the times, including the havoc wrought by the Panic of 1819 on the economy of the Ohio frontier.

They will glimpse the "immorality and carelessness" spoken of by the Columbus Presbytery in a report written in 1822. They will witness the seeds of the Great Rebellion as townspeople voice their opinions on slavery. Most important of all, however, they will meet the Scotch-Irish Presbyterian pioneer in all his fortitude, will power, individual responsibility and integrity. It will be an inspiring encounter.

HIGGINS has also written a memorable church history, which has been published and will be made available to each member of the congregation. In it, he points out that Presbyterian theology provided a hardy philosophy for pioneers but there were certain features of the faith which were somewhat less than practical on the frontier. Among these were its insistence upon an educated clergy and the uncompromising intellectuality of its spiritual fare.

The Rev. Mr. William Burton was born in Vermont in 1789. He was a graduate of Dartmouth college and ordained in the Congregational church in Columbia, Conn. in 1818. He was 33 when he came to Circleville, having taught in Virginia for a time. Many familiar family names appear in the record of his congregation. Among them—Bell, McCrea, Foresman, Huston and Groce.

On September 2, 1826, Mr. Burton laid the cornerstone for a one story brick building completed in 1828. The church was on the site of the present structure and was the first church edifice in Circleville. "Local tradition has it that the bricks were made on the site, probably of clay taken from the circular earthwork, part of which stood just behind the church lot," relates Higgins. "When the meeting house was demolished in the 1850s a brick was discovered with the name 'John Groce' scratched into the clay before it was fired. It is the last identifiable vestige of the original Presbyterian meeting house and is a prized possession of Charles Groce Will, the great-grandson of the younger John Groce."

In March of 1835, William Burton left Circleville. He was long remembered for his fine logical and rhetorical powers. He had set a high intellectual standard for his little church on the frontier.

In 1838, Rev. Mr. Franklin Putnam came to Circleville. He was a grandson of General Rufus Putnam, one of Ohio's founding fathers and was of New England ancestry and Congregational background.

In 1837, old school Presbyterians seized the reins of the church hierarchy nationally, and those synods which had existed in close harmony with the Congregationalists were excised. The Plan of Union between these two closely allied Calvinistic churches had occurred in 1801 because of the lack of educated clergymen on the frontier, but old school Presbyterians had never accepted it.

THE local schism occurred in 1838, when a minority of 16 or 17 persons withdrew from the Mound street congregation and formed an "old school" church. Central Presbyterian church, as it was called, built a modest frame building on the lot donated by Matthew McCrea where the eastern half of Moore's store now stands. Later, during the pastorate of the Rev. Mr. George Kalb, a larger brick building was constructed, which will stand as part of the Noecker building which houses Wes Edstrom Motors.

During the period of separation which lasted 45 years, six ministers served Central church and five ministered to the "First" church. Among the latter was the beloved Dr. James Edward Rowland, (1844-1854), during whose pastorate a new Victorian Gothic style church edifice was completed. Dr. Rowland was buried under the tower of that building and was re-interred under the tower of the new church in 1899.

For nine years in the 1870's, the two churches enjoyed a period of extreme confusion. Rev. William MacMillan served Central and Rev. Dr. Samuel Hildeburn McMillin ministered to First church. The similarity of the names, caused acute distress!

On March 21, 1883, the two churches reconciled differences and sold the Central building to the Baptists. From then on, all Presbyterians attended the Mound Street church. The first minister of the reunited church was Dr. James P. Stratton, who served until 1897.

On January 25, 1891, Miss Carrie Olds became a member of the Presbyterian congregation. Now Mrs. Walter Kindler, she has been a member of the church for 81 years.

Ten ministers have served the Presbyterian church since 1883: Dr. Stratton; Rev. Mr. Frederic L. Bullard, 1897-1902; Dr. David Stanton Tappan, 1902-1913; Dr. Cyrus Boyd Beckes, 1913-1919; Rev. Mr. Floyd Emerson Logee, 1920-1925; Rev. Mr. Emil S. Toensmeier, 1925-1937; Rev. Mr. Robert Kelsey, 1937-1946; Rev. Mr. Donald E. Mitchell, 1946-1961; and the Rev. Mr. Henry A. Walters, the present pastor. The Kelseys and the Mitchells will be honored on the frontier.

In 1838, Rev. Mr. Franklin Putnam came to Circleville. He was a grandson of General Rufus Putnam, one of Ohio's founding fathers and was of New England ancestry and Congregational background.

In 1837, old school Presbyterians seized the reins of the church hierarchy nationally, and those synods which had existed in close harmony with the Congregationalists were excised. The Plan of Union guests at the sesqui-centennial celebration.

THE dates of interest which will be recalled by the congregation include the dedication of the "new" church, January, 1901; the purchase of Dr. Wilder's house east of the church to serve as a parsonage during the pastorate of Dr. Beckes (1913-1919) (This home served Presbyterian ministers and their families until 1965); the dedication of the organ, which was given by Mrs. Elizabeth Joslin Ruggles on Jan. 2, 1930; the completion of the Christian Education building in 1966; and the realization of the new kitchen in 1972.

The celebration will begin at 5 p.m. on Saturday in the Youth chapel of the Christian Education building with a reception and a view of the historical displays which have been lent by members of the congregation. The banquet will begin promptly at 6 p.m., followed by two performances of "Backwoods Genesis" at 8 and 9:15. Friends of the church, who would like to see the play, are invited to attend the 9:15 performance.

On Sunday morning, Dr. Arthur Romig of the Columbus Presbytery, will deliver the sesqui-centennial message at the 10:25 service and holy communion will be celebrated by the Rev. Messrs. Mitchell and Kelsey.

OK Of New Building

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only approval by the Senate Public Works Committee remains to clear the way for construction of a $16.9 million federal office building and parking facility in Columbus, Ohio.

The House Public Works Committee okayed the project Wednesday. It has been approved by the Office of Management and Budget, and requires no floor action in Congress.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

In Pursuit Of 'Legal' Attainment

DEAR ABBY: Believe it or not, my husband of 10 years left me and our two beautiful children for our baby sister! It wasn't easy to accept, but I have decided to make the best of it.

I will say I made a very fair settlement. I got the deed to our new four-bedroom home, which is on 3 1/2 acres of choice property, rental property which pays $50,000 a year, plus annuities for the children (ages 3 and 6) and a very nice cash settlement.

Now I am looking for a decent man. I prefer the athletic type between 35 and 45 who puts God first, family second and his job last.

There is a lawyer in town who is eligible, but I have never been introduced to him. I am told I am a good looking woman, and I am well built and know how to dress. I am not exactly for free love, but I'm only 33, and I'm not dead yet.

How do I meet this lawyer without being too obvious?

DEAR "33": It seems to me that a woman in your position could use some "legal" advice. He's one man you could call up and make an appointment with, without much difficulty. All you may get is legal advice, for which you must pay-but it's worth a try.

DEAR ABBY: You are our last resort. Please help! My father (who lives with us) is 69, and he drives a large, fast car of which he is very proud. The problem is that his eyesight is failing and he won't admit it.

Dad hasn't had his eyes checked in five years. When we suggest a checkup, he flies into a rage and insists that he is the very best judge of his eyesight, and his eyes are perfect.

Abby, we have been with him countless times when he has unknowingly forced other motorists practically off the road, narrowly missed guard rails, and tailed dangerously close to the car ahead of him.

If anyone offers to drive, Dad gets upset and insists on having his way. Everyone who knows him will use almost any excuse to get out of riding with him.

Abby, he reads your column faithfully. Please tell him that he should consider the opinions and safety of others, and get his eyes checked, even though he thinks they are "perfect." Sign me.

OUT OF EXCUSES

DEAR OUT: I'll wager your letter will be read (and heeded) by many who are younger than your dad, but could use the advice. I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: My mother in law has lived with us for nearly 20 years. She is over 80 now and I hope she lives to be 100.

In all the years Mother has lived with us, she has never had any expenses. We've taken care of her housing, food, clothing-everything. She has banked her pension checks, and now she has a reasonably healthy bank account.

Now the question, and I hope this doesn't sound mean or grabby: should we ask her to share her pension check with us? Since Mother has paid no bills, I am sure she isn't aware how much the cost of living has gone up.

We have spent our lives and our income raising and educating our family. We have provided for our own retirement, and are not hard up, but we could use a little help.

We wouldn't hurt Mother for anything, and no matter what your answer is, we will continue taking the best of care of her as long as she lives. No name or town, please.

SIXTYISH DEAR SIXTYISH: I'm sure the dear old lady has not offered to share her pension check with you only because you have made her feel so completely "at home" that it never occurred to her-which is to your credit. Your reasons are sensible and valid, ask her.

Abby, we have been with him countless times when he has unknowingly forced other motorists practically off the road, narrowly missed guard

Criticism Popular

Polls, surveys and man-in-the-street interviews are customary pulse-taking exercises by a number of organizations. A "cynicism scale" has now entered the ranks of techniques used to fathom public sentiment.

The invention of an Ohio State University political scientist, the scale is employed to measure the confidence of the citizenry in its government. The results, as announced by Prof. Arthur Miller, are interesting.

In 1964, 20 per cent of the American public was distrustful of government activities. By 1970, the scale registered 39 per cent. That precipitate increase in cynicism could be viewed several ways.

A dreamer might conclude that utopia, in whatever form he envisions it, is slipping from our grasp. The realist might say the public is awakening to the fact that turning the problems of the individual over to the community to be solved is a trend with a high rate of failure.

Still others might conclude that expressing cynicism about a wide spectrum of affairs has become the popular thing to do. The "cynicism scale" offers more questions than it answers.

Deploing Shabbiness

If railroad boxcars have looked shabby to you lately, perhaps it is because they are. A special investigating unit of the House Commerce Committee has found they are battered and hardly ever repaired.

"The financial condition of many carriers is so poor that maintenance and repair seem to be funded on a day-to-day basis with whatever cash is left after interest payments are met," the investigators reported.

A shortage of freight cars has been a problem since at least 1887, when the first case was docketed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the subcommittee said. This has seriously retarded the growth of the single largest component in the rail industry, it added.

Misallocation of cars is blamed by the investigators for much of the car shortage. Carriers lack control over their fleet, and one witness before the committee said once a car is misrouted in the classification yard it is often cheaper to continue the misrouting than to start over.

But letting them look so shabby still is no way to run a railroad.

Orthodox Angela

By JEFFERY HART

A couple of years ago, Angela Davis was The Girl Who Has Everything, a sort of New Left prom queen whose likeness glowed at you from T-shirt and dormitory wall.

First of all she was black and very Third Worldy, both privileged categories, and this was underlined by her membership in the—gorgeous title!—Che-Lumumba branch of the California Communist Party. She sported one of the biggest Afros ever seen. She was routinely described as "beautiful" or "stunning."

But there was more, much more. As everyone knows, the New Left is based mainly on the campuses, among students and young faculty members. And lo, Angela was not only a student but also a Younger

Faculty Member—a Ph.D. candidate, and a lecturer in philosophy. Thus, in her own person, she embodied these two key constituencies.

But that wasn't all. The prisons are currently being politicized and radicalized. And Angela was in love with a prisoner, an accused murderer, Soledad Brother George Jackson. Wow! "The night after I saw you in court," she wrote to him, "for the first time in months, I dreamt . . . We were together, fighting pigs, winning . . . I love you."

You might say the cup runneth over. But there was more, yet. Angela was the prize pupil of the New Left guru Herbert Marcuse. She had reigned as the FBI's most wanted fugitive. She had been denounced by Ronald Reagan and fired by the California Regents.

She had absolutely everything. Compared with Angela, Sacco and Vanzetti, the Scottsboro Boys, Joe Hill and the Rosenbergs were a bunch of bums. Once disentangled from her murder trial, Angela, it seemed, would certainly be the charismatic counter-culture heroine of the 1970's, a sort of Joan of Arc, closing down universities with a wave of the hand.

But this summer something strange has been happening. Some hint of what was in store appeared when Angela announced that she would like to visit Bulgaria for a vacation. Bulgaria? For a vacation?

And on tour in East Europe and the Soviet Union she has been sounding like a rigid old-fashioned Communist of the 30s and 40s. The effect is almost quaint. The ghost of Earl Browder hovers near.

When a group of Czech exiles asked her to put in a good word for some dissidents facing trial in Prague, Angela, through a spokesman, gave out the straight Communist boilerplate: "People in East Europe got into difficulties only if they were undermining the government. Those who left to go into political exile were also attacking their country."

Ahem. This was the Angela who had announced after her trail that she was going to work to liberate "every political prisoner in the world."

Then, in the Soviet Union, there was Angela recommending "Lenin's ethnic policy" as a model for the U.S. and speaking like any Stalinist today: "Everything we have seen in the Soviet Union will inspire us in our struggle. Our devotion to Marxism-Leninism and Communism and our own ideological convictions have been greatly strengthened."

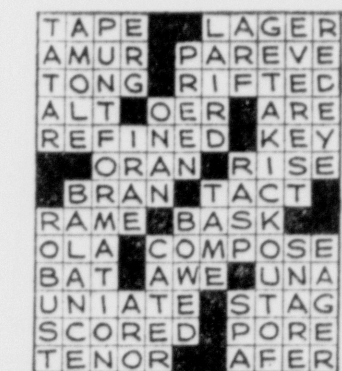

In a stylistic sense it was completely fitting that she should receive the Great Star of International Friendship from East Germany's Walter Ulbricht, the most rigid Stalinist in East Europe.

Image-wise, this was all catastrophic, a throw-back to Union Square and the old Daily Worker. Rigid orthodoxy of that sort is un-chie and infra dig on the Left these days. The Soviet Union is definitely OUT, a bore, and if Angela keeps that sort of thing up she will not be able to close down a single university.

FRIDAY'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have little chance now to get out and get much done, but you are able to tackle those problems of a basic nature that need your undivided attention successfully, even though you do not feel you are getting much done. There is now a tendency to nag at mate or anyone around who is close to you, but adverse results would follow, so avoid criticizing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do your utmost to have more harmony with those who dwell with you and you can do much better on your job, in business, etc., as a result. Don't take any risks where your present security is concerned. Don't invest unwisely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be careful not to take out on others whatever is your own fault, or you get into real trouble, lose valuable allies. Buy the supplies you need, but count the cost well. Remain calm and poised.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get good advice from experts where monetary matters are concerned so you do not make any serious errors. That usual adviser is not dependable right now, so avoid. Use your own hunches, also.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are feeling cranky today, so be sure to relax and think clearly before you come to any important decisions or do vital work. Don't attend that social affair where one you do not like will be. Steer clear of trouble.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Although you may be right about some situation, don't voice any comments right now, or you get into trouble with others. Study that important date and become better informed. Do not waste time with persons who bore you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You had better handle own affairs yourself since others are so busy with their own worries they could do you no good. Don't give advice to others unless asked for it, and then most wisely, cautiously. Avoid arguments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't take chances with your good name—follow every rule and regulation that applies to you. Steer clear of a higher-up who is looking for someone on whom to vent spleen. Don't let it be you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you leave present set-up for something new and untied, you could get into a peck of trouble, so show that you are wise, stable. Get the information that will be helpful in performing your regular work more efficiently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) That intuitive prompting you have is not good, so do not follow it or you get into a good deal of trouble. Show that you have self-control and follow orthodox methods. Avoid one who makes you feel uncomfortable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't get impatient if an associate who can help you with some project has big troubles and cannot do so at this time. Try to be of help yourself, and later all is fine for you. Discuss important affairs with associates.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

My doctor assures me that my heart is normal. My cardiogram is normal. Every once in a while I get a pumping sensation in my chest and I really understand what it means when people say, "My heart jumped into my throat." Doesn't this mean that I have heart trouble?

Mr. S. B., S.C.

Dear Mr. B.: Despite the fact that your doctor has given you the assurance that your heart is normal, it is quite understandable that the sensations you describe cause anxiety.

We take the regularity of our heart rhythm for granted until there is some sudden change that makes us aware that the heart is "actually" beating. There are many normal variations of cardiac rhythm which can occur under stress because of medication, overindulgence in tobacco, alcohol and even food. Any increase in activity by exertion or exercise causes an increase rate of the heartbeat, but the regularity continues.

A remarkable electrical impulse station in the heart is known as the sinus node. This nerve pathway is located in the auricles, two of the four chambers in the heart.

Normal electrical vibrations travel to the larger chamber of the heart, the ventricle, which pumps blood out of the heart. It gets its rhythm from the direction of the sinus node.

Every once in a while, an extra contraction sneaks in and gives the sensation of fluttering in the chest. This is known as an extra systole.

The sinus node, or pacemaker, may sometimes be temporarily thrown out of order and produces a very rapid heartbeat, or tachycardia. A person with a normal rate of 80 beats a minute may jump to 120 beats per minute during such an attack. Similarly, the heart rate may be excessively slow. This is known as bradycardia.

It is true that there are changes in rhythm and regularity of the heart rate that functioning of the heart. This is readily seen in the electrocardiogram reading and its underlying cause is soon established.

It is important to know that perils symptoms of any nature must be brought to the

NEW YORK (AP) — Did you get a lot done last year?

You did? And feeling pretty complacent about it, too? A lot of people are like that — always patting themselves on the back for the number of things they manage to get done.

You probably wouldn't feel so smug, however, about the list of things you achieved, if you were honest enough to look at the other side of the balance sheet and list the things you didn't do in the previous 12 months.

Without knowing you at all, for example, I'll wager that you — like me — didn't — Teach Sophia Loren to eat spaghetti with chopsticks.

Box a compass. Win an argument with a woman.

Go wading in a mountain stream with Julie Andrews. Write a letter to a congressman.

Send a congratulatory telegram to your mother on your birthday.

Take a teen-ager to lunch during National Brotherhood Week.

Find a new secret parking space for your car. Write something immortal underwater with a pen.

See your dentist twice. And those are only a few of the things you didn't do. Man, I'll also bet that you didn't —

Challenge your boss to a game of Indian hand-wrestling and beat him.

Invent a new form of pleasure the government can't put a tax on.

Sharpen a pencil for a pretty secretary.

Sit in the lap of receptionist in your office and cry on her shoulder.

Tell a Polish bartender a new Italian joke. Do anything for the national ecology except get a summer tan.

Attend three PTA meetings in a row. Buy more than one box of Girl Scout cookies.

Learn all the stanzas of the "Star-Spangled Banner." Read the Bible clear through for the first time in your life.

Inherit a fortune.

When you compare all these things you didn't do with the piddling things you did do, puny man, doesn't it make you feel you kind of wasted your time?

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — One result of spreading affluence and its corollary, consumer activism, is the availability today of information that once was closely guarded by money institutions.

A growing number of banks now publish for individuals the type of money management bulletins that once were directed only at wealthy individuals and corporations.

There is nothing altruistic about it. It's good business.

Millions of persons today have discretionary income; they have money left over after paying for basic needs, and they can decide how they want to save or spend it. Naturally the banks are interested.

In addition, people are better educated today. This doesn't necessarily mean that they are better equipped to handle themselves in the complex marketplace of modern society, but it does mean that they want to know how.

The combination of money and education adds up to power. That power underlays the entire consumer movement — it led to the more vigorous regulatory climate and now it is fostering the disclosure of information once regarded as private.

Monthly publications by large banks treat such diverse topics as controlling travel costs, the art and science of budgeting, and calculating retirement costs.

Among the tips is a savings timetable that lists the amount that must be saved per month at various interest rates to achieve a specific goal in a stated time.

If you wished to build up savings of $10,000, you would look down the chart and read that you would have to put away $65.86 a month for 10 years, assuming 4.5 per cent interest.

Smart savers then may turn to another chart, also offered by the banks under their recent "the truth never hurt" policy. This chart illustrates the damage that inflation rates cause.

It shows that if the rate of inflation was 4 per cent a year — it exceeded that in four of the past five years — the buying power of that money would be $8,200 in five years, $6,700 in 10.

Have such revelations hurt the savings institutions? Hardly. Savings and loan associations are bulging because the growing financial assets of Americans — more than $85 billion in savings, life insurance, pensions and the like — must be placed somewhere.

Wise consumers know that, like corporations, they must have "liquidity," or money that can be used quickly. Therefore savings.

As the level of education and the availability of information rise, so also rises the number of direct shareholders in corporations, so also does the amount of life insurance. The facts aid rather than hurt legitimate financial institutions.

FLAGSHIP—The all-new Chevrolet Monte Carlo is among the most changed of all seven Chevrolet Car lines in 1973. Featuring beautifully sculptured side and rear quarter metal, new grill and an optional Landau or opera-type vinyl roof, the Monte Carlo is a styling classic. Many months of advanced chassis and suspension engineering work have given the Monte Carlo handling and roadability said to equal or surpass that of Europe's most expensive personal touring cars.

Chevrolet Restyles Three Product Lines For 1973

Chevrolet offers three product lines that are completely new from the ground up... the Monte Carlo, the division's personal luxury car; an all-new Chevelle, and a completely restyled line of pickup trucks, Chevrolet's first new pickup truck in six years.

The 1973 Chevelles, featuring seven car series, from the Caprice to the Vega, give America's automobile buyer the greatest choice of styling features and safety innovations ever offered in the division's 62-year history.

In the model year that just ended, Chevrolet broke its all-time past sales record. Along the way new sales records were established for the Corvette, the Monte Carlo, the Caprice, the Nova, and the Vega.

John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and general manager of Chevrolet, stated that "The '73 models are substantially improved in roadability, comfort and styling."

"In addition," DeLorean added, "Chevrolet dealers are undertaking an all new service program, called Service Supremacy, which should result in a giant step toward better service."

"The addition of an improved product and improved service to the momentum built in the past year should guarantee a super year for Chevrolet in 1973," he concluded.

McGovern Pledges Billions In Interim Aid To Cities

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George McGovern today named a team of more than 20 mayors to help him forge a long-range urban policy and pledged $4 billion in interim relief to cities.

The Democratic Presidential nominee also announced that a second group, "Mayors for McGovern," will begin active campaigning in his behalf. It is headed by John V. Lindsay of New York, Joseph Alioto of San Francisco and Roman Gribbs of Detroit.

That trio will participate as well on the new policy panel, for which McGovern designated Mayors Kenneth Gibson of Newark, N.J., Richard J. Daley of Chicago and Kevin P. White of Boston and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota as leaders.

After introducing the new campaign units, McGovern attacked the Nixon administration's urban record and declared the election "will determine the fate of American cities for the next two decades."

In remarks prepared for a mid-morning news conference, the South Dakotan called for a massive redirection of federal funds from the Vietnam war to jobs, housing, crime prevention, environmental protection, schools and urban transportation.

He was particularly critical of the Federal Housing Administration, saying "the federal government today is... becoming the nation's largest slumlord."

McGovern said federal housing authorities in at least 20 cities, including St. Louis, Chicago and Washington, face imminent bankruptcy while "Richard Nixon has impounded some $315 million which could be used" to keep them alive.

"Under my administration," McGovern said, "the impoundment of funds appropriated by Congress because of so-called inflationary pressures will cease. These public programs should not be penalized for the mistakes of other sectors of the economy."

McGovern hailed the recent congressional compromise on the revenue-sharing bill as "a very welcome step" but said "as president, I would increase that program another $4 billion in emergency fiscal relief to cities, out of money saved through tax reform and cuts in unnecessary military spending."

Moving Said Cause Behind Some Women's Depression

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Psychiatrists say moving is far more stressful than generally believed and is a contributing factor in depression among American women.

"When you ask a bunch of depressed people about events that have occurred in their life recently, moving was about the third most frequent event," says Myrna M. Weissman, codirector of Yale University's Depression Research Unit.

"In no way should we say that depression is caused by moving," she says. "It could be a contributing factor, we feel it is substantial."

Dr. Weissman's studies, outlined in "Society" and the Yale Alumni Magazine, dealt with depressed women. Those women who had been through a move generally didn't connect their illness to the move, Dr. Weissman and coworker Eugene S. Paykel wrote.

The women attributed it, instead, to financial problems, loneliness, marital friction, career frustrations, etc., but "almost always, however, these problems were the result of poor adaptation to the stresses created by moving."

"These women didn't associate their depression with the move because moving is an accepted part of American life," the psychiatrists wrote.

Twenty per cent of the U.S. population, 40 million people, moves at least once per year, according to census figures.

Kingston Church Setting For Elward-Ward Wedding

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL LEE WARD

Miss Kristie Lynn Elward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zwyer of Kingston, and Mr. Michael Lee Ward, son of Mrs. Leonard Squeo, of Chillicothe and the late Mr. James Ward, were united in marriage.

The Rev. Michael Wright officiated the 7:30 p.m. candlelight ceremony Sept. 2nd at the Kingston United Methodist Church. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Martha Hohenstein, organist.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a formal length white satin gown made by her mother. The gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice and princess seaming with Venice lace trimming the high neckline, long sleeves and forming panels down the front of the skirt. The handkerchief empire waistline was accented with small satin bows in front and a chapel length train flowed gracefully from the back. The bride's elbow length veil of silk illusion was caught to a floral headpiece of satin rosettes. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, lavender carnations and ivy.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Chi Davidson of Chillicothe, wore a formal length gown of lavender dotted Swiss with brief sleeves, round neckline, fitted bodice and slightly gathered skirt. Sealed lace trimmed the neckline, sleeves and front of the dress which also featured ribbon bows on the front and sleeves. In Mrs. Davidson's hair was a wide satin bow of matching color with floor length ribbon streamers. She carried a colonial bouquet of feathered lavender carnations.

Bridesmaids were Miss Cindy Squeo, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Rhonda K. Potts, cousin of the bride. Their gowns were styled identically to the honor attendant's. Miss Squeo wore a pink gown and carried a bouquet of feathered pink carnations while Miss Potts was in mint green with a bouquet of feathered green carnations.

Mr. David Ward served a best man for his brother. Ushers were Mr. Roger Kirby, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mr. Timothy Elward, brother of the bride. Miss Margie DeLong was in charge of the guest book.

A reception in the church annex immediately followed the ceremony. Assisting hostesses were Miss Betty Davis, Miss Kathleen Hankins, Miss Mary Kirby, Miss Marion Zwyer, Miss Gloria Ward, Miss Doris Ross and Miss Phyllis Potts.

The bride is a graduate of Zane Trace High School. The bridegroom, a graduate of Circleville High School, is a Staff Sergeant in the United States Air Force. He recently returned from a tour of duty in Vietnam. The couple will reside at Kinchloe Air Force Base, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

New Officers Elected By Five Points WCTU

Five Points Women's Christian Temperance Union elected new officers during its Wednesday afternoon meeting in the Five Points United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Francis Furniss, president, presided. She used as her theme for the day "Prayer, Our Greatest Source Of Unused Power." Members sang "Sweet Hour Of Prayer" and Mrs. Furniss read Scripture from Matthew followed by meditation and prayer. Laura Long, secretary, received dues for the coming year.

Guests were Mrs. Nellie Alkire and Mrs. Mildred Davis. Announcement was made that Sept. 28th is the World's WCTU Day of Prayer. Members were urged to remember to pray particularly on that day.

"Implement Strength" was read by Mrs. Furniss and Laura Long read "Implement Strength

For Conquest" for her Christian Outreach Department. Mrs. Edna McPherson read the Citizenship Department's "Citizens Implement Strength" and Mrs. Arthur Winfough and Mrs. Nellie Alkire read an article on communicating with clarity and charity. A discussion followed the reading.

Named as officers for the coming year were: Mrs. Francis Furniss, president; Mrs. Loring Stoer, vice president; Laura Long, secretary and Mrs. Herman Porter, treasurer.

The meeting was closed with the pledges to the American, Christian and Temperance flags and the benediction.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Arthur Winfough and Mrs. Edna McPherson. Mrs. Lyle Ingman and Mrs. Ned Long will be hostesses for the October meeting.

4 More Years Needed, Nixon Tells Party Faithful

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Nixon, expanding on his 1972 campaign slogan of "Four More Years," says his re-election would mean "four of the best years in the whole history of the United States."

Addressing a $1,000-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinner here Wednesday night, Nixon spoke of his initiatives toward Moscow and Peking, but declared:

"We need four more years to build on this beginning."

Then, talking about law and order and his effort to end what he terms permissiveness by the courts, he said:

"Four years isn't enough. We need more."

Summing up his pitch for what he has described as "a clear majority," he cited three goals for his hoped-for four more years:

—Peace in the world.

—"Opportunity and jobs for all Americans."

—To instill in all citizens a firm conviction that "this is a great and good, and indeed, a beautiful country."

As Nixon spoke, a dwindling but noisy group of dissenters—the White House described them as the forces of the President's Democratic opponent, George McGovern—demonstrated outside the Century Plaza Hotel.

At one point, police estimated the demonstrators numbered more than 3,000 but their ranks thinned as the evening wore on. Only occasionally did they stray from their role as professional peaceful protesters, once when some tried to storm the lobby.

Los Angeles police in riot gear moved in quickly whenever they got a hint of possible violence but quickly withdrew when nothing serious occurred.

Inside the Century Plaza, busloads of young Republicans had their own party and, at one point, were allowed to leave by the rear of the hotel to gather in the lobby behind ropes and stanchions.

Free Turnpike Not Feasible?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Needed improvements preclude paying off revenue bonds for the Ohio Turnpike and making it a toll-free highway that meets standards of the interstate system, state Highway Director J. Phillip Riehley said Wednesday.

Testifying at a Senate Finance Committee hearing on a bill to create an Ohio Transportation Commission, Riehley estimated that between $87 million and $71 million will be needed to provide 22 additional interchanges. The turnpike now has 15.

He also said there are "a considerable number of miles" where a third lane will have to be added to meet anticipated traffic in 1980.

The legislation would set up a 12-member transportation agency to issue revenue bonds for all types of transportation and related facilities.

The commission would take over the functions of the Ohio Bridge Commission, the Underground Parking Commission and the Ohio Turnpike Commission.

Turnpike Commission Chairman James Shocknessy has criticized a provision of the bill that would permit re-issuing of turnpike bonds to pay for other types of state transportation projects.

He has said that would violate a pledge made to the people of Ohio that the toll road would be free after its bonds were retired. The turnpike is expected to be paid off in 1980.

Sen. Robert Shaw, R-16 Columbus, sponsor of the bill and chairman of the Finance Committee, defended the measure, saying it was an attempt to meet "Ohio's present and impending transportation crisis."

Without mentioning Shocknessy, Shaw said state officials "in 1953, when the pledge was made, had no way of anticipating the current transportation crisis. There is a history, rightfully or wrongfully, of the legislature changing its mind."

Also testifying before the committee was state Finance Director Harold Hovey, who said he does not feel it would be "in the public interest" to pay off the turnpike's existing bonds.

The bonds were sold at an interest rate of 3 3/4 per cent, he noted, while any new bonds would require a rate of at least 5 1/2 per cent.

Columbus City Strike Still Looms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Contract negotiations by municipal employees and Columbus officials were to resume today after the blue and white collar workers rejected the city's latest offer.

The pact was turned down by members of Local 1632 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees at a meeting Wednesday night, but no strike vote was taken, on the recommendation of chief negotiator Warren Jennings.

"I felt the parties could best get together out of the realm of any strike threat," Jennings said later.

After the meeting, Jennings contacted city officials and arranged today's bargaining session.

Another meeting of Local 1632 was scheduled for Sunday at 2 p.m. to report on progress of the talks. If negotiations haven't been productive, he said, a vote could be taken to strike at midnight Sunday, when the present contract expires.

If the 1,700 employees represented by the union strike, the sanitation division would be affected most, according to city officials, because about 80 per cent of its workers are union members.

Canada has an estimated 15 per cent of the world's surface fresh water.

Waste Discharge In Lakes Fought

MINNEAPOLIS, Min. (AP) — A firm stand against any kind of waste discharge—including treated effluent—into the Great Lakes has been taken by the Great Lakes Commission.

Some 20 of the delegates Tuesday to the two-day meeting saw the Coast Guard as the best hope for implementing tough regulations to help preserve the lakes.

NEW YORK (AP) — A study of better hotels across the United States shows that the average guest is about 42 years old, lodges at the hotel only two days and rarely, if ever, goes to the movies during his stay.

It means millions of dollars aren't spent because the weary traveler finds it too much of a bother to get up, get dressed and join the line at the Bijou. Steps are being taken to correct this.

A young company is bringing uncut theatrical films to that traveler's room at $3 a throw, making it possible for him to see such shows as "Carnal Knowledge" 12 times a day if he chooses.

The company is Trans-World Communications, a division of Columbia Pictures Industries, Inc., and it pipes the film into hotel room television sets on a cable linked to a master control center.

Columbia made the hotel study and Trans-World is capitalizing on the findings with a vengeance, searching for what one senior Columbia executive calls "the lost audience"—that army of 42-year-old guests.

This pay-as-you-view system was developed by Bill Butters, a hard-charging Knoxville, Tenn., native who now is Trans-World president.

The system made its debut last December at a posh 1,000-room Atlanta hotel, spread in June to nearly 5,000 rooms at five major New York hotels and isn't really going full blast yet.

It's going to be installed at major hotels in a total of 23 U.S. cities, Toronto and London. Butters estimates that 160,000 hotel rooms will be wired in by the end of 1973.

A hotel guest gets a choice of two new theatrical films on two cable channels, selects one and calls room service.

It tacks $3 on his hotel bill and relays the order to a control center. Then the show goes on. If the guest leaves in mid-movie, it will be there when he gets back. The $3 show runs from 8 a.m. one day to 7 a.m. the next. Without commercials, too. If he wants to watch commercial television, he just turns the channel.

All three television networks are watching all this with an eagle eye.

"We're not competing with free television," Butters is careful to emphasize. He says that among other factors, the viewing audience in hotel rooms isn't counted in the television ratings.

"For another thing," he said, "our experience shows that most of the people watching our system haven't done it during prime evening hours."

A study his company made shows that only 33 per cent of hotel viewers watched the system during what network television considers prime time—7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The heavy viewers showed up, according to the study, in these proportions: 36 per cent from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. the next day and 31 per cent from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

50 Million Head Of Stock Too Much For Ailing Man

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Raymond Mayo has about 50 million head of stock on his farm, but he says he's going to sell out because of an ailment that's ruined for a man in his business.

Mayo is a worm farmer with a bad back, and a man who can't bend to tend the critters hasn't got much future in the worm raising game.

Raymond, 38, and his wife, Sue, run the Shannon Worm Farm — one of the world's largest — on four acres of rich soil just outside this Florida east coast city.

The soil is rich because anybody who runs a worm farm also has a salable byproduct — gardening soil beefed up with worm manure.

Mayo says that in a good week he'll sell more than 2,400 cups of worms to retailers from California to Maine. The retailers sell the wrigglers — about 60 to a cup — to fishermen for 55 to 75 cents.

The worm manure sells at about 75 cents for a large plastic bagful, "but that's sold mainly to local customers," Mrs. Mayo says. "We don't advertise it, but we get lots of repeat business."

Mayo bought the worm farm two years ago after selling his moving and transfer business in New York.

But his wife says a recent back problem is getting a little too much for the worm rancher, "because he can't bend. And believe me, this is one business where you do a lot of bending."

The worm farm employs about six part-time workers — plus the Mayos and their four children — to care for and harvest the estimated 50 million crawlers.

Mrs. Mayo says worms aren't exactly personality kids, "but they are pretty interesting. They don't take too much care — mainly just sprinkling them with food and water — and after a while you get used to the jokes from your friends."

The Shannon farm has earned a place in worm history.

While the run-of-the-mill bait worm is about eight inches long, the Smithsonian Institution in Washington has a preserved Shannon product that stretches 29 inches.

Blind Young Country Singer Hopes For Regained Sight

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Teen-age country singer Jackie Stiefel had just belted out "Pen in Hand" at a Tampa night club when a man near the stage hollered, "Hey, honey, open your eyes so you can see me."

The blonde, 17-year-old performer hesitated a moment, then said softly into the microphone, "I wish I could."

Jackie has been blind since birth.

"I don't want people to feel sorry for me," the teen-ager said after the performance. "It's not really much of a handicap."

She says she doesn't need sight to sense audience response to her music.

Jackie currently is on tour, with shows booked in seven states.

She was born in Pensacola, Fla., and began singing after her family moved to a small town near Lake Okechobee, in south Florida.

"I'd sit out on a fence and sing to the cows," she recalls.

When she turned 13, she started singing on a central Florida television station and at rodeos. Her mother, who serves as her agent, later began booking appearances in Florida and Texas.

She doesn't spend her money on parties and dresses as many other 17-year-olds do.

She's saving for an operation at Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore, Md. Doctors say the operation could give her sight for the first time.

"In a way, I'm excited," she said. Then the smile faded and she added, "In a way I'm scared too. But if it works, I'll be the happiest person on earth."

Shirley MacLaine

In Auto Accident

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Actress Shirley MacLaine escaped injury when the car in which she was riding to suburban rally on behalf of Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern was involved in a minor accident.

A deputy sheriff who was asking witnesses' identities for his report of the accident Tuesday night was told by the actress that she was Shirley Parker, but is better known as Shirley MacLaine.

"And I'm John Wayne," the deputy replied, disinterested in what he assumed was a spoof.

Gilligan Rips Tax Repeal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan blasted Wednesday as a "Trojan horse" the proposed constitutional amendment which would repeal the state income tax.

He also pledged an all-out fight to inform the people of Ohio "just exactly what is involved." Gilligan was asked about his plans in view of developments indicating the controversial proposal will appear on the Nov. 7 ballot as State Issue No. 2.

"The amendment is like a Trojan horse. It does a lot more than just repeal the present law," the governor said. The amendment also provides that if Ohio ever wants an income tax in the future, it will have to be at a flat rate instead of a graduated rate, he said during an interview taping session.

Defending the existing graduated tax, the governor said: "The average wage earner in Belmont County, for instance, makes $10,000 a year. As governor of Ohio, I make $40,000. But my state income tax is not four times as much as his, it is 22 times as much. And that's the way it ought to be. The flat rate tax really socks it to the little guy."

On another subject, Gilligan said he is "convinced" that Ohio will be in Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern's column in the November election. "The latest polls show we are moving up dramatically. I look to a Garrison finish and a Democratic victory," he said.

Columbus Rocketry Buffs Active And Growing Group

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Robert H. Goddard, one of the fathers of rocketry, probably would have been proud.

When Columbus residents John Mechtly and his 13-year-old son, Kerry, pick up their rockets, launching tubes and binoculars and hurl their tiny projectiles into the air, they're caught up in more than just the streaking missile.

They're already thinking of time-distance calculations, of fragile pressures on airfoils and of microscopic stresses on the rocket bodies.

Mechtly and his son are members of a small but growing band of rocket enthusiasts, to whom rocketry has long since ceased to be merely a hobby and has almost begun to pale as a mere sport.

"I think a lot of it is the competitive side," Mechtly said. National and local rocketry associations have set up long series of meets, all building toward the annual zenith of the nationals.

Mechtly and his son have made that trip twice, and they'll both be back for many, many more, Mechtly said.

"We use mainly homemade rockets," Mechtly said, although there are plenty of kits for the rocket enthusiast who prefers them.

"We roll our own body tubes, turn our own nose cones," he said. Most are made of cardboard, paper or balsa wood.

Regulations ban metal rockets.

The rockets are fired with specially-built engines, burning a black power-type of fuel and ignited by "a nitro wire" from long distance.

The precautions are needed, even though the smaller versions may look like toys, they soar to altitudes of several thousand feet, Mechtly said.

There is competition to suit every stage of a rocket buff's enthusiasm. There is the "egg launch an egg inside a rocket and land it without cracking the shell.

There are altitude flights, precision flights and a "duration event" which features a rocket-glider combination.

"The idea is to put the rocket up as kind of a first stage with the glider coming down softly, on a parachute or something," Mechtly said. The idea is to keep it in the air for as long as possible.

In several years of rocketry,

Mechtly and Kerry have worked with more than 200 rockets, ranging in size from several inches to several feet.

It's an educational experience for his son, Mechtly said, and he recalls a friend's son who went on from rockets to wind tunnels and advanced science projects.

American Place Names Reflect Medical Field

NEW YORK (AP) — Did you know there's a Mt. Healthy in Ohio and a town called Hygiene in Colorado? That there's a Bow Legs in Oklahoma and a Shoulderblade in Kentucky.

To dramatize the fact that the more than 100 million Americans now served by Blue Cross live virtually everywhere, the Blue Cross Association has come up with a compendium of American place names that reflects its own preoccupation with the world of health and medicine.

Union OKs GM Contract

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Striking United Auto Workers have ended the longest walkout ever at a General Motors plant, but apparently without assuring their major grievances have been settled.

UAW Local 674 members voted Wednesday to ratify a new contract for operations at the GM Assembly Division plant in suburban Norwood, Ohio. They had been on strike 174 days.

The contract—approved by a 74-26 per cent margin by the plant's nonskilled workers and a 94-6 per cent margin among the skilled workers—satisfied the employees' seniority, overtime and shift preference grievances.

But Richard Minton, Local 674 president, said the international UAW organization had recommended dropping of certain production standards grievances.

These complaints, including alleged assembly line speedup and poor working conditions, had been at the crux of employee unhappiness at the Norwood plant.

Kentucky Raid Nets Drug Haul

RACELAND, Ky. (AP) — A raid by Kentucky State Police Wednesday night on a home here netted 30,000 doses of drugs.

Authorities said the substances seized included amphetamines, barbiturates, marijuana and others not yet identified. No estimate of value was immediately available.

Thomas Fleming, 36, of Raceland, was arrested and charged with possession of "controlled substances" during the raid.

Assisting the Kentucky police the Raceland Police Department and the Greenup County Sheriff's Department.

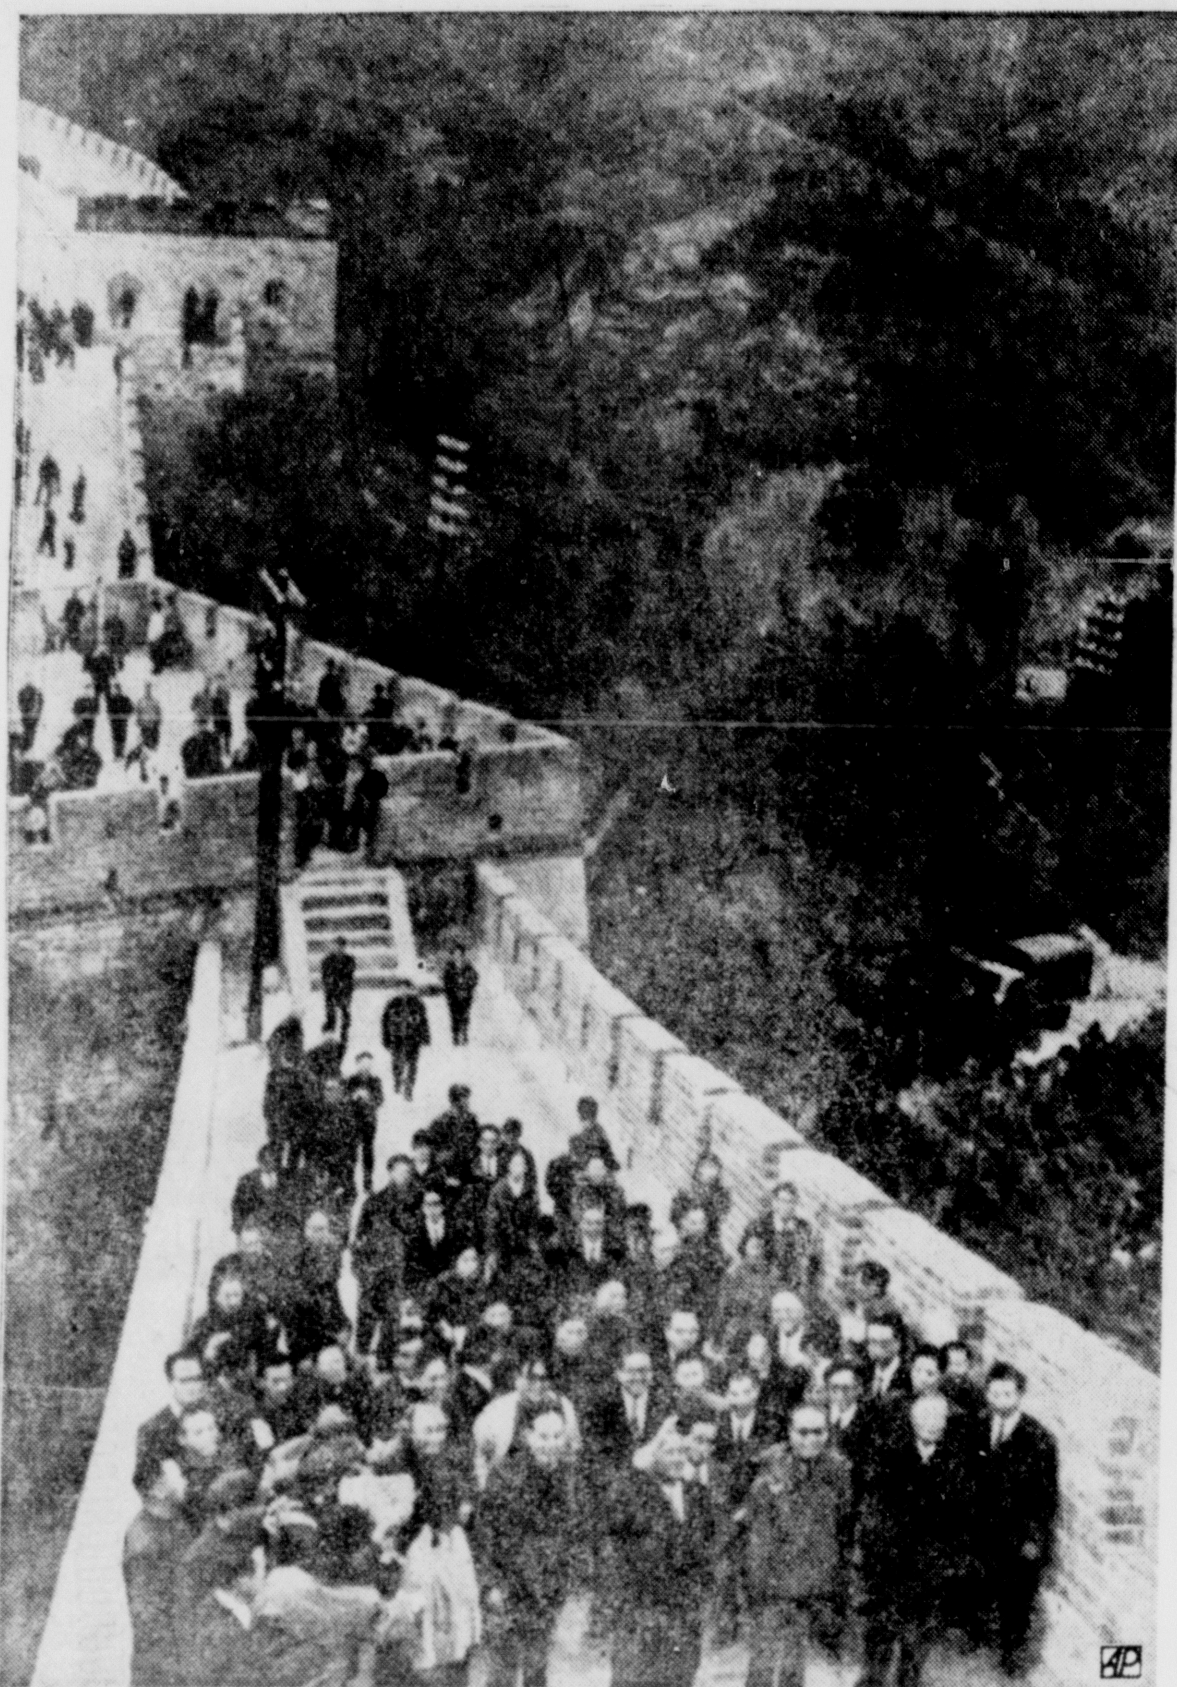

Teens Receive Commendations

Two Circleville High School students have received Letters of Commendation honoring them for high performance in the 1971 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

Announcing the award recipients, June E. Brudzinski and Roy C. Osborn III, was high school principal, Paul Sarchet.

Miss Brudzinski, a senior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Brudzinski, 220 Walnut Creek Pike. Osborn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Osborn Jr., of 526 Forest Drive.

These students are among the upper two per cent of those who are expected to graduate from high school in 1973. Commended students ran high, but below the 15,000 Semifinalists announced earlier this month.

Dissatisfied Chicago Police Issue Blizzard Of Tickets

CHICAGO (AP) — Nobody seems pleased with the rash of traffic citations being issued in Chicago, least of all Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The city's police began issuing up to five times the normal amount of traffic citations Sunday in an attempt to secure collective bargaining rights.

Daley said Wednesday he would not be intimidated by the action, which has been taken in lieu of a walkout by the city's police.

"Is it a threat?" Daley asked. "If that is what it is, they (the policemen) are making a mistake."

Daley said he would be willing to meet with representatives of the police force and other city groups during preparation of the 1973 city budget.

Daley contends that Chicago's policemen are the best paid in the country. After three years on the force, a patrolman reaches a maximum salary of $14,200. Fringe benefits are valued at more than $2,200.

But James Johnson, president of the Confederation of Police (COP) for the 12,000-member force, said wages are not the crucial issue.

He said the patrolmen want a "bill of rights" for those officers facing disciplinary charges, including curtailment of lie detector tests and more low-ranking men on disciplinary boards.

Also at issue is the inclusion of a binding arbitration clause in the 1973 contract, better working conditions and discontinuation of one-man patrol cars.

About 150 persons were overnight guests of the city Wednesday. They were arrested for traffic violations and were unable to produce valid driver's licenses or $25 bond.

"Some of these guys had simply changed pants after work and then went out for an evening paper without their wallets or driver's license and got ticketed," said Judge Richard F. LeFevour of traffic court.

Meanwhile, city and police officials initiated retaliatory action.

Johnson said he learned that the three policemen who issued the most tickets in one district had been transferred to the district which includes the predominantly black Cabrini-Green housing project, considered a hotbed of antipolice feeling.

In the Foster Avenue District on the city's north Side, all policemen on the 4 p.m. to midnight shift were ordered to park their squad cars and patrol their assignments on foot.

Wage-Price Curbs Said Still Needed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A former economic advisor to President Nixon says "an explicit, overt program to deal with prices and wages" will have to be maintained on the federal level "for the indefinite future."

Dr. Paul W. McCracken, who headed the Council on Economic Relations for the first three years of Nixon's term, said Wednesday night that current Phase 2 policies will probably continue through 1973, while the spirit of wage-price controls would be carried on in other programs.

Addressing the Associated Industries of Cleveland's annual management-employee conference, McCracken said that the new program will "have to have enough flexibility to allow the pricing system to perform its function" and that "it must be regarded as even-handed and equitable."

"These are my own views," he added, "but I think we must also develop some kind of program to protect against the abuse of economic power," a factor he termed "a gray area—a no man's land."

But McCracken praised Nixon's economic track record so far, even though adding, "Anyone who looks back and says he doesn't see something he wouldn't do differently is a fool."

"But Phase 2 met the test," he said. "I think the broad strategy of pursuing fiscal and monetary restraint and then at some strategic point implementing a strong wage and price program—a 'freeze'—was valid."

A pertinent question now, he admitted, is whether the wage-price controls should have come earlier. His answer: "I don't know."

Report $2.8 Billion Yearly Export Business For Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Reconditioned light aircraft engines go to Germany and ladies' slippers to Japan as part of Ohio's $2.8 billion export business that involves practically every product manufactured in the state.

Charles Neustadt, director of the international trade division in the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development, mentioned the engines and slippers as an indication of the diversity of products and markets for Ohio manufacturers.

Neustadt said the reconditioned engines are the products of T. W. Smith Aircraft Co. of Cincinnati. He said the Cincinnati firm showed an interest in the export business, and his office aided them in their efforts.

The company, he said, has been sending the engines primarily to Germany since earlier this year and is one of the newcomers in the export trade.

Neustadt said the R. G. Barry Co. of Columbus recently completed a "very substantial arrangement" with a large Japanese department store for slippers. Neustadt termed the deal "unusual" because of Japan's large consumer-oriented industry.

He said the Ohio export business accounts for 230,000 direct jobs and nearly 700,000 jobs connected indirectly with international trade. He said there are about 4,500 firms in the Buckeye state involved in export trade.

"Canada is our number one export country with $750 million a year," he said. "Japan is second with $265 million followed by the United Kingdom with $190 million and Germany with $180 million."

Neustadt said transportation equipment accounts for the largest share of the export dollar—$800 million a year. He said those products are followed by non-electrical machinery.

Mrs. Gilligan Happy To Be Making 'Contribution' To Ohio

By TERESA C. PITTS
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—It was midmorning and Marcy Kathryn Gilligan was into her third cigarette. One fingertip thoughtfully traced the rim of her Lennox china coffee cup. The subject was political violence.

"Sure, I worry about Jack, but we've never really talked about it. An awful lot of men in politics have been shot. But, I almost have the feeling that it's not really possible these days to protect someone completely."

"I mean," she continued, "John Kennedy was protected, so was Bobby, and Martin Luther King. It took a great deal of money to protect those men, and look what happened."

Matter of fact. That is Mrs. John J. Gilligan's way. After two years as Ohio's first lady and official hostess, she has developed a way of being appropriately vague about politics, and startlingly blunt about other things. For example:

"Personally, I think Martha Mitchell is a pretty sick gal. She's a very outspoken woman, and she obviously didn't like politics and wanted out. The way she did it was pretty distasteful," she said.

Sitting in the gubernatorial mansion, with its lofty ceilings and antique furnishings of stone and wood, one has the feeling Mrs. Gilligan would never do anything "distasteful."

"Any woman who's husband is in public life has to be careful not to say anything that would embarrass him or make him look foolish," she said.

"But that's the way it should be. If a wife doesn't believe in the things her husband is saying, well ... that's not much of a marriage," said Mrs. Gilligan, whose marriage is its 27th year.

"Jack and I discuss things. We don't agree on everything. I do, however, wholeheartedly agree with his general approach to politics."

Mrs. Gilligan's politics are a well-kept secret. But she admits she's no women's libber. "I believe women should get equal pay for equal work," she said, "but some consideration should be given to a man with dependents over, say, a single girl. And vice versa."

"Also, some women are applying for jobs in construction, jobs they aren't physically able to do as well as a man. Is it 'equal rights' to hire them?" she asked.

Mrs. Gilligan did question however. Pope Paul's recent decree that women would not be allowed to hold official positions in the Roman Catholic church.

"I was raised as a Catholic and I don't see why women can't be included," she said. "A church we go to in Michigan has nuns who serve communion. I see nothing wrong in that."

Mrs. Gilligan is adamant on the subject of abortion on demand. "I don't believe in it—at all." But she believes birth control is "a matter of personal conscience." Her concern is with unwanted children. "This state is trying to zero in on this whole subject of child abuse. There are an awful lot of neglected or unwanted children," she said. "But who's to decide? I frequently have the feeling that the people who're talking about abortion and birth control are talking about someone else's children."

One of Mrs. Gilligan's pet projects is children's services. She recently urged the development of a "child's advocate's program" in which communities would report directly to her about children's programs in their area.

"I could refer them to an appropriate federal or state agency for assistance, and cut out an awful lot of red tape," Mrs. Gilligan explained. "A lot more in this area should be done in Ohio, but programs have to be initiated and supported at the community level."

The best thing about being the governor's wife, Mrs. Gilligan said, is the "chance to make a contribution, even if it's only listening to people, paying tribute to something they've done."

"The role of being the governor's wife came at an opportune time for me," she said. "Otherwise I might have been very lonely, with the children grown and gone from home, I might even have gone back to teaching."

The worst thing she said is not having time to be with her husband.

"I try to work my schedule around his so that wherever he ends his day I can be there, too, and we can have an evening together," she said.

A relaxing evening together, she said, is a late dinner and a movie on television. Sometimes they manage to slip away for a weekend at Gilligan's family home in Michigan.

"We've been criticized for going to Michigan for our vacations—but we don't have a 'get away' place in Ohio. Besides, anyplace we'd go in Ohio, he'd still be 'the governor.' Up there, it's just 'Jack,'" she said.

Although Columbus has been home to the Gilligans for the past two years, Mrs. Gilligan still has misgivings about the rambling governor's mansion in Bexley.

"It's not very economical," she said.

Upkeep for the mansion and its spacious grounds is provided by the Department of Public Works. Prison trustees are employed to keep the grounds and do the cooking, but she and her press secretary plan the menus, do the grocery shopping and run all the errands.

"We're the only ones who drive," she explained. "The men go home at 5:30 p.m. and if we want anything after that, we have to do it ourselves."

She admits she sometimes longs for the quiet days when the governor taught English at Xavier University. But she says she would never ask him to leave politics. "He's doing what he does best," she said.

A British Deputy For Tombstone

LONDON (AP)—Wyatt Earp, 22 year-old auto salesman, has been made an honorary deputy marshal of Tombstone, Ariz., for life.

Explained the tall, handsome Wyatt, who works at Haywards Health, near Britain's south coast: "My father went to Texas during the war to train as a pilot and naturally, he became interested in the legend of Wyatt Earp. He found he was a man to admire. So when I was born he christened me Wyatt."

Fischer Regrets Missing Tournament

NEW YORK (AP)—World chess champion Bobby Fischer says he regrets that American officials didn't make arrangements that would have permitted him to lead the U.S. team at the chess Olympics under way in Skopje, Yugoslavia. In a statement issued Tuesday, Fischer said it will be virtually impossible for the U.S. team to win the championship without his services and those of grandmasters Bill Lombardy and Larry Evans.

New Treatment Holds Out Hope For The Blind

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A Cuban refugee has told fellow ophthalmologists he has developed a new treatment using heat which restored near-perfect vision to 10 persons declared legally blind.

At the same time Dr. Antonio Gasset was making his announcement to the convention of the American Academy of Ophthalmologists and Otolaryngologists in Dallas on Tuesday, the University of Florida released this researcher's findings on the Gainesville campus.

Dr. Gasset said he and his research team have had "promising preliminary results" in experimental treatment of keratoconus, a condition causing the cornea to become thin and bulge almost to cone shape.

The researcher also suggested that his team's new treatment, which takes less than one minute, may have potential for correcting extreme near-sightedness caused by irregularity in the curvature of the cornea.

A lot has been said about what makes up boys and girls. Much emphasis has been placed upon helping children understand their physical development.

However, children grow and change in other ways which, unfortunately, are seldom discussed. Emotional maturity — recognizing feelings and knowing how to deal with them — is a very important step in growing up.

An excellent book is now available which speaks to children in easily understood language about their emotions. This book, entitled "What Makes Me Feel This Way", was written by Eda J. LeShan and illustrated by Lisl Weil. It is recommended for the child between the ages of eight and fifteen, and it tells him such important thoughts as, "... feelings happen to everyone ... you should not be ashamed of bad feelings, only of bad acts ... the secret feelings about which you worry are the same feelings that most boys and girls your age are having ... your mom and dad have strong emotions, too, so you should try to understand their feelings ...". This book deals frankly with emotions such as anger, fear, fatigue, embarrassment, depression, and frustration. It helps the child not only to understand why he has these feelings, but also how he should react to them, and thus avoid possible emotional disorders.

Who teaches a possum how to hang upside-down by his tail? Well, most possums just seem to know, but not Randolph, the hero of Ellen Conford's book entitled Impossible Possum. In this delightful book, which is illustrated by Rosemary Wells, poor Randolph suffers a lot of bruises on his head and his vanity before his sister teaches him a lesson in self-confidence.

"Water for Dinosaurs And You," written by Roma Gans and illustrated by Richard Cuffa, is a scientific book for young people. It includes a well-illustrated, simple explanation of evaporation and precipitation. It also speaks of the problem of water pollution and emphasizes our needs for clean water.

In Hollering Sun, Nancy Wood has presented in texts and photographs the Indian way of looking at life. Over a ten year period, she has written down and collected the poems, aphorisms and sayings of the Indians of the Taos Pueblo, who still preserve the philosophy and ancient customs of their past. The handsome photographs portray the activities of the Taos community, as well as the countryside and its wildlife. This book will appeal to teenagers interested in Indian thought and philosophy. Adults will also enjoy browsing through and musing upon this book.

The story of "Hermes, Lord of Robbers" was written over two thousand years ago, and is one of the oldest known stories of the ancient Greeks. Now it has been given a new translation in simple language by Penelope Proddow. With Grecian-inspired illustrations by Barbara Cooney this ancient poem becomes an entertaining children's story. In this book the characters created by the ancient Greek author come alive in a very believable and totally human manner which proves their immortality.

Freeze Hits In Northwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pacific northwest tasted winter temperatures today. Frost warnings were posted in Washington where temperatures touched the teens.

Cool conditions brought relief from warm, muggy weather from the Great Lakes to New England.

The southern part of the nation continued to post temperatures in the 70s and 80s.

Scattered rain and thunderstorms moved out of the Rockies to the northern plains and also from the southeast and along the mid Atlantic coast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 25 at Kalispell, Mont., to 81 at Cocoa Beach, Fla.

Damage Suit Filed By Police Officer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Patrolman Thomas Wood Wednesday filed a $500,000 damage suit against a Cincinnati man who had filed assault charges against the officer but did not show up in Hamilton County Municipal Court to prosecute.

The suit charged Daniel Tinsley, 23, with malicious prosecution. Tinsley had claimed officers beat him when he was arrested July 27 on charges of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Legal Alligator Hunt Draws Fire

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — There are radically conflicting views on the outcome of Louisiana's first legal alligator hunt in 10 years.

State officials deem it a success. Conservationists see it as a new threat to the species. It was disaster for the 1,347 saurians whose hide are now curing in salt.

Tax Sharing Is Praised By Lugar

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The revenue sharing program will give local governments an opportunity to prove they can do things better than the federal government, Indianapolis Mayor Richard Lugar said here Wednesday.

Speaking at the 21st annual conference of the Ohio Municipal League, Lugar said both opponents and proponents of the revenue sharing concept will be watching municipalities closely to see how they spend the funds.

And he said the funds will be under much closer scrutiny by Washington than were the billions that came to local governments in the past earmarked for specific purposes.

Lugar, who has been touring the country as one of President Nixon's surrogate spokesmen, told newsmen prior to the address that Republicans should be wary of polls forecasting a landslide victory for the incumbent.

He said he believes the polls "understate the minimum Democrat strength, the residual Democrat support" that Sen. George McGovern will produce.

Speakers scheduled at the conference today included Ohio House Speaker Charles Kurfess and House Minority Leader A. G. Lancione.

During a business session, delegates were to act on the league's statement of legislative policy, which deals with such things as state financial aid to municipalities, tax reform, labor relations and environmental protection.

Stephen Kohn Named State Banking Chief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Stephen Kohn, 33, vice president of the Akron National Bank and Trust Co., will become state superintendent of banks on Nov. 1. Ohio Commerce Director Dennis Shaul announced the appointment Wednesday after Louis Kastelic submitted his resignation in order to return to private banking in Cleveland.

held over 278,168 acres of coastal swamp in the southwestern corner of Louisiana, was limited to 13 days and 64 specially licensed trappers. It ended Sept. 17.

The Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission says it is still evaluating the hunt and has not decided whether another will be held next year.

"We weren't just out to kill a bunch of alligators," said Ted Joanen, a commission research biologist.

But Don Schuler, vice president of the New Orleans Audubon Society, said the experiment had put in jeopardy the whole national policy of protecting alligators from extinction.

"The lid has been lifted on poaching just when that kind of thing was being brought under control," Schuler said.

The big problem with alligators: How do you "harvest" them without having the big reptiles hunted to near-extinction? Alligator hide makes handsome shoes, purses, belts, and thus sells for up to $11 per foot — a big temptation to the greedy.

Protected against legal trappers as an endangered species, alligators staged a comeback in the web of bayous and canals in four million acres of swampland in southern Louisiana.

Even with alligator hunting illegal, poachers poled their boats into vast and unpopulated marshes to hunt 'gators at night.

After the legal hunt, the hides were auctioned off at $74,614, an average of $8.02 per foot, although prime hides brought more than $11 a foot.

Each hide was tagged by a Louisiana Wild Life and Fish agent with a special tag, issued for the occasion.

"Our tagging system will work," Joanen said. "Poachers might take a few hides but how will they sell them? No furrier will risk his license by buying untaged hides."

Schuler scoffed. In the first place, he said, he wouldn't trust the state agency to enforce the system.

"As for tagging hides," he

3 Americans Listed As Dead In Indochina

SAIGON (AP) — Only one American was reported killed in action in Indochina last week, but two died of non-hostile causes, the U.S. Command announced today.

In addition, the Command said six more men were listed as missing and 13 were reported wounded.

South Vietnamese casualties continued at unusually high levels caused by the North Vietnamese offensive. A total of 631 government troops were reported killed, 196 missing and 2,346 wounded.

The Saigon command claimed 2,879 enemy were killed during the weekly reporting period which ended Saturday.

Bench, Aaron Trade Homers; Braves Win Contest, 8-5

By BUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hank Aaron just goes on and on while Johnny Bench goes in streaks. But no matter which way they go, they're both quite satisfied with this season, thank you.

"I'd like to hit a few more home runs this year," Aaron said Wednesday night after slugging his 33rd of the season and 672nd of his career in Atlanta's 8-5 victory over Cincinnati.

"But I'll be satisfied if I get 35 this year," Bad Henry added. "It'll leave me 40 to hit."

And his manager, Eddie Mathews, has no doubt Aaron will surpass Babe Ruth's all-time homer record of 714.

"Hank just goes on and on," the Braves' field general said. "It's just a matter of time with him. He'll do it. He's really something else, isn't he?"

Bench has been something else this season. For one thing, he's bunched his homers in spurts. "I'm a streak hitter," he said. "I have seven homers in the last seven games I've played and I hit seven in five games earlier this year."

"This season, in some ways, has been more satisfying than 1970," he added. Two years ago he won Most Valuable Player honors with his 45 homers and 148 runs batted in, both tops in the National League. In 1971 he sagged to just 27 homers and 61 RBI.

"A lot of people were saying after my bad year last year that 1970 was a fluke for me," Bench has very convincingly disproved that notion. He hit his 40th homer to drive in his 122nd run—both tops in the majors—in the Reds' losing cause against the Braves.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 3-1, St. Louis silenced the New York Mets 4-0, the Chicago Cubs clubbed Montreal 8-0, Houston beat San Francisco 3-0 and Los Angeles stopped San Diego 2-0.

"I'm not thinking 'homer' every time I go up to the plate," Aaron said after Atlanta's triumph. "I'm just trying to meet the ball and I figure the homers will take care of themselves."

Aaron hit his homer in the first inning but Bench's shot triggered a three-run rally that put the Reds on top after two. After six innings, though, the score was 4-4.

So in the seventh, Aaron just met the ball, hitting a tiebreaking single to start a three-run uprising that gave the Braves the margin of victory. In all, Atlanta battered three Cincinnati pitchers for 16 hits.

"Sometimes," Dave Cash of the Pirates said, "you have to play with a little pain." But what he did was anything but painful as far as Pittsburgh was concerned.

Cash had broken the thumb on his throwing hand on Labor Day. On Wednesday night, just 23 days later, he was back in the Reds' lineup. And, despite the injury, he swatted a pair of hits against the Phillies, one of them a tie-breaking double in the fifth inning that paved the way to victory.

Although the fracture hasn't fully healed, Cash is more concerned about the upcoming championship playoffs with the Reds. "My timing is off," he said. "I'm out in front of ball. It'll take about six or seven more games. I don't worry about hitting. That comes natural."

But when someone asked Bill Virdon if Cash has to prove anything in order to regain his starting job at second base, the Pirates' manager replied: "He doesn't have to prove anything to me. I know he can play."

Rennie Stennett had the job while Cash was sidelined. The mound was a nice place to be as far as Al Santorini, Don Wilson, Rick Reuschel and Don Sutton were concerned.

Santorini struck out 12 Mets en route to a six-hitter that stretched his consecutive scoreless inning string to 20 while rookie Ken Seitz of the Cardinals drove in a pair of runs.

Wilson also had a six-hitter—with five Giants strikeout victims—and Larry Howard, a substitute catcher, drove in two Astros runs with a single and his second home run. Reuschel had a better night than either of them, spinning a four-hitter against the Expos while Billy Williams led the Cubs' 13-hit attack with his seventh career grand slam, his 36th homer of the year.

But Sutton was even better than any of them. He fired a three-hitter for his third consecutive shutout and ninth of the season, tops in the league. He hasn't allowed a run in 33 innings. And Joe Ferguson's two-run double was all Sutton and the Dodgers needed to put down the Padres.

Tigers Meet Blue Lions In SCOL Season Opener

TIGER SOPHOMORES—These first year gridders on the Circleville High School football team will be ready for action Friday night when the Red and Black travels to

Bill Bacon, Rick Sampsill and Perry Hoskins. Second row, Tim McNaughton, Dave Bond, Scott Bowman, Doug Palm and Phil Roll.

"We expect a hard, tough football game Friday night at Washington C.H. and the team that is mentally ready and physically prepared should walk off the field with the victory," Circleville Coach Larry Cook stated.

The Tigers will be seeking their second win of the season and the first step toward a coveted South Central Ohio League title against the Blue Lions.

It will be a big, strong team that will face the Tigers. The Washington C.H. offensive unit averages 207 pounds up front with the backs tipping the scales at a 175-pound average.

Both teams will carry a 1-2 record into the fray. The Lions dropped their opener to Portsmouth, 22-14, downed Chillicothe, 34-8, in their second game and were trounced 36-8 last week at Grove City.

THE Tigers lost their opener to Grove City, 21-7, were beaten by Teays Valley, 13-12, and came up with a fine defensive effort last week to stop Hamilton Twp. 14-0.

Washington runs with I backs in pro and slot set formations. The running game is built around speedy tailback Chuck Wilson and power driving Duke Willis at fullback. The offensive game is comprised of 70 per cent running and 30 per cent passing.

Left-handed quarterback Alan Coppock directs the Lions' offense and he can roll out and throw to keep the opponents defense honest.

Wilson likes to sweep to the outside while Willis is a dangerous runner in the Courthouse belly series.

On defense, the Lions will use a 6-1 invert with man to man coverage in the secondary. They are big but not too mobile. However, they are aggressive and like to hit people.

The offensive lineup for the Blue Lions will be: Dave Rittenhouse, tight end; Garth Cox, right tackle; John Tatman, right guard; Mike Domenico, center; Chuck Oesterle, left guard; Kevin Smith or John Sanderson, left tackle; Larry Howell and Kevin Terry, split end; Alan Coppock, quarterback; Duke Willis, fullback; Chuck Wilson, tailback; Mark Johnson, halfback.

DEFENSIVELY, it will be Wilson and Willis, ends; Kevin Smith at one tackle and John Sanderson or Paul Wood at the other; Cox and Tatman, linebackers; Gilbert Sparkman and Larry Dumford, rover backs; Mark Johnson and Mike Oyer, safeties.

"We feel the SCOL race is shaping up between Wilmington, Miami Trace, Washington C.H. and Circleville," Coach Cook commented. "This is a big game for us as Trace and Wilmington go against each other Friday night so two of the contenders will suffer a setback in the league openers."

"We must continue to be aggressive on defense and not give up the ball in crucial situations. A team never stands still. They either get better or worse and we have been getting better each game," Cook offered.

Tiger coaches named Gary Mogan defensive Tiger of the week for his performance against Hamilton Twp. The hard-nosed linebacker came up with a pass interception, recovered two fumbles and was in on 10 tackles in the contest.

They named Tom Frericks offensive Tiger of the week for his outstanding blocking at the point of attack.

The Tigers are in good physical shape and will be ready to go when the opening whistle sounds Friday night.

OFFENSIVELY, the Tigers

Brown Claims Cleveland Game Not Personal War

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals Coach Paul Brown is downplaying his personal rivalry with the Cleveland Browns prior to this Sunday's game there.

Brown, who was fired by Brown owner Art Modell several years before starting the Cincinnati Bengals expansion team, says he now likes to look upon the game as a team rivalry.

"This is the third year we're playing them now," he said.

"It's a strong rivalry, but the personal aspects of it for me are fading."

Since the two Ohio clubs began playing in 1970, the Browns have won three of the four games. The largest margin of victory for either team has been four points, including the two pre-season games won by the Bengals.

Cincinnati slipped by Cleveland 27-21 in the pre-season game at Ohio State Stadium in Columbus.

Defensive safety Ernie Kellerman, released by the Browns after six years earlier this season, remains on the Cincinnati roster.

Some Bengals players were laughing about reports from Cleveland that changes were being made for the game because the Browns feared Kellerman would help Cincinnati learn their weaknesses.

"They've brainwashed him completely," laughed offensive guard Pat Mattson, Wednesday.

"Yep," said Kellerman. "I've told them all the secrets."

The Bengals waived defensive running back Alvin Randolph, picked up from Green Bay, to make room for Kellerman.

Rookie defensive end Sherman White missed practice Wednesday complaining of a sore shoulder, but was expected to be ready for Sunday.

Scotland Golf Course A Toughie

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — "I would hate to see what happens when the wind blows here," said South African golfer Gary Player as he prepared for Thursday's second round of the $134,750 John Player Classic tournament over Turnberry's daunting Ailsa Championship course.

Several of the 31-man field for Europe's richest golfing prize agreed the links had not really shown its toughness yet, despite a cluster of moderate scores in the first round Wednesday.

Mike Phipps Faces Nemesis From 1971

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Browns quarterback Mike Phipps, who will be making his fourth pro start Sunday, will be facing the team that beat him in his first start last year.

Phipps got his first start as a rookie in 1971 against the Cincinnati Bengals. The Browns lost 14-10—their only defeat in four regular-season meetings with the Bengals.

par 3 eighth hole at Lansdowne. The foursome Wednesday consisted of, from the left: Gary Wilson, Yocum, Ken Hunt and Art Founds. Yocum receives half-season membership at Lansdowne, an award from Titleist and a chance to win a trip for his effort.

J. K. McKay Proves Self

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Prior to the start of the college football season, Coach John McKay said he was worried about the comments his wife would hear watching games from her seat in the stands.

"He'll drop a ball and she'll hear someone say, 'That idiot McKay is playing his idiot son.'"

That was, before the season began, before the University of Southern California became the nation's top-ranked team with a top receiver named J. K. McKay.

Now if McKay doesn't play McKay, the fans will get on him. Young McKay has 12 receptions and three touchdowns in three games.

"I think I've taken a little bit of the pressure off me now," the 5-foot-11½, 175-pound receiver said. "I had to prove myself, and the players, had to know I'm good enough."

Colonels May Play In Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mike Storen, president and general manager of the Kentucky Colonels American Basketball Association, says his Louisville team may play some games in Cincinnati in 1973-74.

The Cincinnati Enquirer said Storen plans to "meet with Cincinnati civic and community leaders" to discuss shifting part of the franchise here to fill the void left by the departure of the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association.

"There are a number of considerations," said Storen, one-time promotion director of the Royals, now the Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

"But I hope to get together with members of the community to investigate scheduling games in Cincinnati next year and for years to come."

Storen said there were several things that might make the agreement beneficial for both cities.

"For one thing," he said, "we could develop a television package in Cincinnati. When I was with the Royals one year, we took 10 games to Cleveland. This reduces the cost of season tickets in the one town and enables you to set up a season ticket package in the other."

"And, you can televise both ways."

"A season ticket for 42 games in an expensive program," he added.

Canonero II Won't Run In Woodward

NEW YORK (AP) — Riva Ridge and Key To The Mint will run with a lot at stake in the Woodward Saturday, and Canonero II will stay in his barn—because there's a lot at stake.

"If he was a cheap horse, you'd take a chance and run him," trainer Buddy Hirsch said Wednesday after announcing the King anch 4-year-old will not run in the Woodward at Belmont Park because of an infected ankle.

Tribe Again Defeats Orioles, 3-0

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

Are the Orioles an extinct bird? Could be—in the American League East pennant race.

After a critical 3-0 loss to the Cleveland Indians Wednesday night, the defending American League champion Baltimore Orioles might be a dying breed in 1972.

"That doesn't eliminate us mathematically," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, "but . . ."

Weaver left the sentence hanging, which is just about where the Orioles are right now. Baltimore has fallen 3½ games in back of the front-running Boston Red Sox and it appears that only a miracle finish could give them a fourth straight Eastern Division pennant.

"I can't figure out all the combinations it would take for us to win, but I imagine there are some," added Weaver.

This is the pitch, Earl: Any combination of three victories by Boston or losses by Baltimore will eliminate the Orioles from contention. The same goes for the New York Yankees, who also fell 3½ behind by losing to the second-place Detroit Tigers 6-5 Wednesday night.

The Red Sox continued to rule the East by a half-game after defeating the Milwaukee Brewers 7-5.

In the West, the Oakland A's moved closer to the title by winning a doubleheader from the Minnesota Twins, 1-0 in 11 innings and 2-1 in 10. The Chicago White Sox dropped to the brink of elimination by losing a 4-2 decision to the Kansas City Royals. Elsewhere, the California Angels beat the Texas Rangers 3-1.

Gaylord Perry, who's been accused on occasion of throwing a wet ball, didn't let a 90-minute rain delay bother him as he pitched a seven-hitter over the Orioles.

"There's no doubt that Perry throws a strange pitch," said Weaver of Perry's alleged spitter.

Perry, who won his 23rd game, allowed three of Baltimore's hits in the opening inning but pitched out of trouble with the help of a double play. The veteran righthander was equally effective after that rain delay in the sixth inning.

The Indians scored all their runs off Oriole southpaw Dave McNally in the first inning.

Chris Chambliss hit a two-run triple and then scored on a single by Ray Fosse. McNally then departed the scene without retiring a batter.

Duke Sims delivered a tie-breaking single in the last of the ninth to cap a two-run rally as the Tigers whipped New York and dealt a serious blow to the Yankees' title chances. The loser was reliever Sparky Lyle, the Yankees' Most Valuable Pitcher with 35 saves.

The Tigers scored five runs in the last two innings to come back from an early 5-0 deficit. New York had taken that big lead in the first two innings on a three-run homer by Johnny Callison in the first and a two-run single by Bobby Murcer in the second.

Reggie Smith doubled home two runs, Luis Aparicio tripled home a pair and Bill Lee turned in a clutch relief job to lead Boston over Milwaukee.

"All we have to do is win every ball game and we have no worries," said the 38-year-old Aparicio, his eyes sparkling like a rookie.

"This is one I felt we had to win," said Boston Manager Ed- die Kasko.

Sal Bando delivered both game-winning hits to pace Oakland over Minnesota. In the first game, he singled to drive in the winning run in the 11th inning and in the second game, his run-scoring hit produced the game-winner in the 10th.

John Mayberry slammed a two-run homer in the first and scored after his third-inning triple to power Kansas City past Chicago. White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner was obviously distraught.

"We're really a long shot now," he said, quietly.

Vada Pinson's double in the third inning drove home Sandy Alomar with the winning run and Clyde Wright pitched a six-hitter as California beat Texas.

War Of Hockey Leagues Continue; 11 Court Suits

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A summer of frantic checkbook warring is over and the new kid on hockey's big league block apparently has moved in to stay.

The World Hockey Association was greeted with some so what shrugs when it first announced its formation about one year ago. The standard reaction of the established National Hockey League was to ignore the new league.

When some fringe players announced their intention to switch leagues, the NHL's announced gain. "The decision to pursue players is up to the individual clubs," said Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL. "But I'm not sure that the players they've announced are good enough to pursue."

And Campbell probably was right until June, when the WHA dropped its Bobby Hull bombshell, during the long-time superstar from Chicago of the NHL to Winnipeg of the WHA with a $2.75 million contract. Hull's signing started the war in earnest.

J. C. Tremblay, Gerry Cheevers, Derek Sanderson and Johnny McKenzie were other NHL stars who jumped, and so did the NHL—right into court actions.

There currently are 11 suits pending in various courts around the country, some inaugurated by the NHL, others by the WHA.

The key to most of the suits is the controversial reserve clause, a routine part of every NHL contract. The clause, the NHL claims, binds a player to his team or an option year beyond the current term of the contract.

"That clause," argues Dick Wood, president of the WHA's New York franchise, "isn't worth the paper it's written on. I'm confident the courts will rule against it."

Wood and Bill Torrey, general manager of the New York Islanders, an NHL expansion franchise, expect to find out just how valid that clause is in a head-to-head legal confrontation.

The Islanders paid $6 million to the NHL for their franchise and $5 million more to the New York Rangers as indemnification for territorial rights. That $11 million bought a franchise and 21 players at the NHL's June expansion draft. Fight of the 21 players Torrey drafted, however, have signed with the rival league, leaving the Islanders' GM in a rather unpleasant circumstances.

men who after captivity again are free and with their families," Krag said.

The prime minister said he was confident the whole Danish nation shared his sincere hope that "this humanitarian act—the release of the prisoners—will herald a positive outcome of the peace negotiations which can quickly put an end to the human sufferings caused by this tragic conflict."

Navy Lt. (j.g.) Mark Gartley and Norris Charles and Air Force Maj. Edward Elias arrived in Moscow Wednesday night from Peking. Among those seeing them off this morning from Moscow airport was Adolph Dubs, the American charge d'affaires.

In an encounter with Dubs, the Rev. William Sloane Coffin, one of the escorts, told the diplomat, "You are so indifferent to the plight of those pilots in North Vietnam."

Dubs, his face flushed, shot back at the Yale University chaplain, "How dare you."

The Rev. Coffin retorted, "Now shut up and you listen to me for a change."

Then the clergyman told Dubs, "It's clear who's using whom this time."

He referred to secret writing kits that the North Vietnamese claim were sent to U.S. war prisoners in North Vietnam by U.S. officials.

The Pentagon and POW relatives have denied that secret writing kits or any other types of espionage equipment have been sent to the prisoners.

With slow measured words, Dubs told the chaplain: "Don't address me in those terms. Just don't address me in those terms."

The exchange broke up with the clergyman telling Dubs, "Get off your hind legs and come down off your high horse."

The pilots heard part of the exchange but stayed in the background and did not intervene.

The background to the dispute was the desire of the North Vietnamese and the prisoners' escort that they not be contacted by U.S. officials en route home and that they travel on commercial airlines.

Dubs met the pilots Wednesday night on their arrival from Peking and offered to put them up at the ambassador's residence in Moscow and to provide a medical evacuation plane for their return to the United States from Copenhagen. But the pilots refused.

The fliers were released from the POW camp Sept. 17 with the understanding they would fly only civilian aircraft to America.

"We'd better proceed in this way for the safe release of the other POWs," Gartley said.

Several of the antiwar activists traveling with the fliers tried to block Dubs' way to the pilots after they arrived at the airport late Wednesday. But a meeting was arranged later in an airport office of Aeroflot, the Soviet airline.

"No demands were made on the pilots," Dubs said.

But the Rev. Coffin later termed Dubs' behavior "threatening." He said Dubs had "strongly recommended they take the medivac plane from Copenhagen."

However, when asked if the U.S. diplomat had threatened the fliers, the chaplain said, "No, not actually."

The others in the antiwar group included David Dellinger and Cora Weiss, cochairmen of the Committee of Liaison with Families of Prisoners Detained in North Vietnam, and Richard Falk.

After the Wednesday night airport scene, the pilots appeared more relaxed and in their highest spirits since release from the POW camp. Each man called relatives in the United States from an Aeroflot representative's home, where they dined.

Gartley, 28, who was imprisoned in 1968, called his father Gerald, the operator of a lodge in Greenville, Maine, and greeted him with "Hello Dad" for the first time in four years. The flier's mother, Minnie, of Dunedin, Fla., accompanied the activists to Hanoi and was with the group in Moscow.

Charles, 27, who was a POW for 10 months, put in a telephone call to his 3-year-old daughter Kirsten in Tampa, Fla. He said the girl asked him: "Bring me some chocolate, Daddy."

Charles' wife, Olga, of San Diego, Calif., also was in the delegation which went to Hanoi.

Elias, 34, called his wife Georgia in Washington, D.C., and came away after the talk to report that his 3-year-old son Mike was fine. Elias, who was a prisoner for four months, also spoke with his father, Barney Elias of Valdosta, Ga.

Monetary Reform Hopes Brighten With U.S. Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — In contrast to their mood a few days ago, the world's top finance officials now are saying that large strides can be taken in shaping a new international monetary system within a year.

As the International Monetary Fund moved today to set up the negotiating forum for monetary reform, finance ministers and central bankers attending the IMF's annual meeting believed the basis for serious talks finally had been laid.

Until the United States came out with specific monetary proposals Tuesday, the mood was gloomy over whether any kind of agreement could be hammered out between now and the next IMF meeting in Nairobi, Kenya, next September.

"I leave this meeting with a little bit more optimism," said

Helmut Schmidt, the West German finance minister, adding that he was pleased the United States provided a "coherent platform which we have so long waited for."

Schmidt said several major sore points had been resolved, including a U.S. pledge to make the dollar convertible again once its balance of payments is in line, and a softening of the American insistence that trade and monetary talks be closely linked.

But a number of differences remain, indicating that hard bargaining lies ahead.

French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing told the delegates Wednesday that next year's meeting should result in final agreement on how the new money-exchange system would work.

He agreed with U.S. Treasury Secretary George Shultz that the dollar should enjoy the same rights as other currencies of the world. Shultz proposed that the dollar be allowed to swing in value in the exchange markets just as widely as the French franc, the British pound, the German mark, or any other money.

But he differed with the Americans on other major points, including one that may prove the most nettlesome problem of all: what to do about the extra accumulation of dollars overseas while monetary reform is being negotiated.

Giscard d'Estaing said in effect that he leans toward putting some limit on the extra accumulation of dollars, an idea strongly opposed by the United States.

He agreed with U.S. Treasury Secretary George Shultz that the dollar should enjoy the same rights as other currencies of the world. Shultz proposed that the dollar be allowed to swing in value in the exchange markets just as widely as the French franc, the British pound, the German mark, or any other money.

by a federal corporation or lose their government relief checks.

Finance Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said his committee rejected Nixon's plan in part because members thought it did not have adequate work requirements for able-bodied welfare recipients.

In adopting the Mansfield amendment on Social Security earnings-limits, the Senate went a step beyond the House which followed Nixon's recommendation and put the ceiling at $2,000, or $320 more than presently allowed.

Bennett, R-Utah, argued against the $3,000 ceiling, saying that it would cost an extra $17 billion and generally would benefit retired persons with the highest incomes.

However, if past performance is an indication, House-Senate conferees are likely to opt for the lower House-passed figure.

The Senate defeated another amendment proposed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., to do away with the earnings limit altogether.

Hospital Organizing Heart Unit; Okays New Physician

Berger Hospital's Board of Governors were brought up-to-date on improvements planned for the hospital.

Administrator John Reid noted that Dr. Michael Kirk will become the newest member of the county's medical staff when he makes his planned move here in October. The general practitioner plans to enter practice here in mid-October.

The hospital was tested on its ease of switching to emergency power during an emergency when the accident last Saturday cut off electric power to the northend area. Reid said that the hospital's generator came on six seconds after the power outage and kept the hospital running smoothly.

However, the staff experienced difficulties because the accident occurred at the entrance to the hospital parking and emergency area. Reid said he was working on a hospital employee identification system for possible future incidents, allowing them better access to the area. Further complications were caused by the large number of people who came to view the accident, blocking passage of emergency and medical personnel.

NINE bids were received for coronary car equipment for the new coronary unit planned at the hospital, but the contract has not been offered. Miss Kathy Frericks, who was employed to organize the unit, is now on the job and working with the Red Cross in Columbus to make preparations for the heart patient treatment center.

Miss Frericks is an experienced operator of CCU and has taught coronary care treatment.

Local Jaycee and Kiwanis Clubs have offered their assistance to finance the project, expected to cost about $15,000.

Because the hospital administrator expects to run coronary care training course locally, there is a need for instructional books. Reid listed the volumes on a sheet with other items he feels should be purchased this year to keep the hospital up to date.

Many items on this list will be purchased and donated by the hospital guilds. The equipment budget proposed by the administrator totaled around $20,000.

August showed up well for hospital business with percentage of occupancy at 75. The emergency room saw 906 patients that same month.

Attending the Wednesday evening meeting were: Reid, Mrs. Ann Dresbach, Bob Huffer, Mrs. John Stevenson, Harry Clifton, Mayor Frank Barnhill, Charles Rose, Dr. Carlos Alvarez, Howard Koch, Russ Palm.

School Subsidy Checks Are In

Pickaway County schools received $159,759.62 as their share of state support for the month of support.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson reported the subsidy payments dropped in some areas during the month, reflecting local property tax adjustments.

The payment to Circleville City schools is $66,920.11, Ferguson noted. Other payments to local school districts are:

Logan Elm $26,506.92; Teays Valley $39,068.04 and Westfall $27,264.17.

In addition, a direct allotment was made to the Pickaway County Board of Education.

State Nixon Chief Rejects Debates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. George McGovern's Ohio campaign manager called upon President Nixon's state campaign organization today to agree to a debate between the two candidates in the Buckeye State.

The offer by Richard Sklar was promptly rejected by Charles Ross, chairman of the Ohio campaign for Re-election of the President.

Ross said he agrees with the national Republican Party's policy that it was "not in the national interest for an incumbent President to engage in public debate."
